Kingston Equalization Rate Remains Same, 3 Changes Made in County

Towns of Lloyd, Saugerties and Wawarsing Get Slight Increases in the Equalization Table as Submitted.

DISTRICT ATTORNEY

Cleon B. Murray Submits Annual Report of District Attorney's Office and Funds.

The Committee on Equalization made its report Friday evening relative to the equalized value of the real property in each of the towns of the county and the city of Kingston. There were changes in but three of the towns over the rates adopted last year. Lloyd's rate was increased from 51 in 1935 to 54 this year. Saugerties was rated at 52 per cent in 1935 and 53 per cent in the report for this year. Wawarsing, which had a rate of 42 per cent in 1935, was raised to 46 per cent in the report of the committee as recommended.

The equalization rates as recommended by the committee on Equalization and as adopted each year by the board indicate the relative assessed valuations of real property in each town and the city in relation to the assessed valuation in the other towns of the county. The equalized valuation in each town as recommended in the report of the committee, signed by every member of the committee, is as follows:

Denning	44%
Esopus	38
Gardiner	52
Hardenbergh	57
Hurley	78
Kingston Town	52

Highway Accounts.

The committee of highway accounts reported it had examined the bills presented to the committee and the accounts were found to be correct and proper charges against the county, and on motion of Supervisors DuBois, Hulsair and Furguson it was moved that the bills in the full amounts be allowed. The total to be raised is $4,751.09. Over under rule.

A communication was received from the county treasurer requesting that an additional sum of $106.72 be raised for the county retirement fund. This is in addition to the sum which had previously been requested on the recommendation of the state department. Referred to committee on appropriations.

The annual report of District Attorney Cleon B. Murray relative to moneys received through his office was received. This report stated that there had been received the sum of $300 for fines as follows:

Joseph Tesoro $100; Linus Quinn $100; John Durham $100. These sums have been turned over to the county treasurer. Referred to committee on district attorney.

A report was also made by District Attorney Cleon B. Murray relative to the special fund which is allocated to the office for office expenditures. He reported as follows:

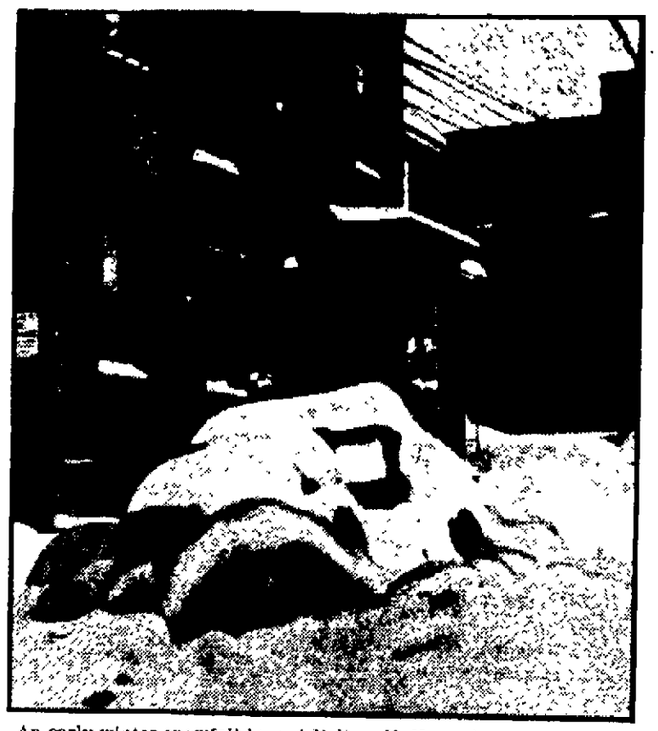

Appropriation made	$2,000.00
Credit balance	265.04
Total available	$2,265.04

Congressional Leaders Work On 1937 Legislative Program

Washington, Nov. 28 (AP)—With the opening of the 75th Congress only six weeks away, a score of congressional leaders today were hammering together the framework of a heavy legislative program.

Although President Roosevelt has given little indication of the measures he will suggest, it appeared certain that congress would consider at least six major proposals:

A farm tenancy bill, providing federal aid to convert tenants into owners. Such legislation has been urged by the President, and Chairman Jones, (D.-Texas) of the house agriculture committee who said its passage was "assured."

Minor revisions of the tax on undistributed corporation earnings, promised by Chairman Harrison (D.-Miss.) of the senate finance committee to relieve any "inequities" revealed by the first collections.

A crop insurance plan, incubating in the agriculture department and agriculture committees of both houses.

A new neutrality act, to replace the present law expiring May 1. Chairman Pittman (D.-Nev.) of the senate foreign relations committee has predicted few changes, although Senators Nye (R.-N. D.) and Lewis (D.-Ill.) have urged a far-reaching expansion of the nation's peace program.

A relief bill which probably will be offered by the president late in the session.

Modifications of the Tennessee Valley Act, as suggested by Mr. Roosevelt, to put stronger emphasis on land use and conservation activities.

New Floor Leader

The task of carrying the administration's program through the House, dominated by an unwieldy Democratic majority, will lie with a new floor leader to be chosen during the opening days of the session.

Three candidates already battling for the post are Chairman O'Connor (D.-N. Y.) of the rules committee, Chairman Rayburn (D.-Tex.) of the interstate commerce committee, and Representative Rankin (D.-Miss.), militant advocate of an enlarged federal power program.

Representative Beiter has proposed his fellow New Yorker Mead, for the post, and other candidacies are expected.

O'Connor served as acting floor leader during the final weeks of the last session.

Speaker Bankhead (D.-Ala.) is expected to find little opposition to his re-election.

Most urgent job for the new Congress will be to consider reenactment of many New Deal laws scheduled to expire early in 1937. The Treasury has announced it will seek a renewal of the President's power to regulate the gold content of the dollar, as a protection against unexpected currency upsets abroad.

Reorganization Intended

A top-to-bottom reorganization of the federal government, intended to trim away unnecessary bureaus and fit the emergency agencies into a permanent framework, is being drafted by three committees—named by the Senate, House, and President Roosevelt.

A new attempt to reach some of the NRA objectives—especially federal regulation of wages and working conditions—has been pledged by several members of both houses.

A system of federal charters for corporations engaged in interstate commerce has been proposed by Senator O'Mahoney (D.-Wyo.) as the "most feasible" method of establishing minimum labor standards without amending the Constitution. His plan has been approved "in principle" by Chairman Wheeler (D.-Mont.) of the Senate interstate commerce committee.

Other measures which seemed headed for early consideration include a housing bill, based on the Wagner proposal submitted last session; a plan to regulate the coal industry, being drafted by Senator Guffey (D.-Pa.), and a food and drug bill, calling for more stringent regulation of the advertising and sale of medicines, food-stuffs, and cosmetics.

Coldest Weather Of Season Grips City; Snow Falls

Friday night was the coldest so far experienced this season in Kingston and the cold drove the mercury in the official city thermometer down to a low of 13 degrees above zero, the lowest point so far recorded. On November 19, a low of 14 above was recorded, and on November 18 and 23 a low of 16 above has been recorded.

At midnight the temperature was 15 degrees above zero and it gradually grew colder until at 4 o'clock this morning the low of 13 above was recorded.

At 8:30 o'clock this morning the mercury stood at 21 degrees above zero, and shortly after 9 o'clock flurries of snow filled the air.

"FOUR IN FRONT SEAT CLUB" ADDS MEMBERS

The Colonial Branch of the Four Riding in the Front Seat received a new member this morning in police court when William Douglas of Port Ewen pleaded guilty to the charge and was fined $2. He was also fined $3 for using auto plates on his car that had been issued for another car. He was arrested Friday by the police. J. Warren Ryan, 17, of Newburgh, was arrested Friday on a charge of driving a car with four riding in the front seat, which is a violation of the state law. His case was set down for a hearing Monday.

HARRY FREER OPERATED ON FOR APPENDICITIS

Harry Freer, 18, of Orchard street, who was sentenced to Elmira Reformatory Wednesday by County Judge Frederick C. Traver, on a charge of grand larceny in the second degree, is now at the Kingston Hospital. He was operated on for appendicitis Thanksgiving night by Dr. Joseph Jacobson and will probably be at the hospital for at least 10 days.

Waterway Testimony

Montreal, Nov. 28 (AP).—The international joint commission had before it today thousands of pages of testimony from which it will draw its conclusions regarding the merits of the proposed Montreal-New York waterway. Official reporters for the commission estimated the evidence placed in the record in public hearings in New York city, Albany, Burlington, Vt., and Plattsburg, N. Y., would fill more than 2,700 pages.

Green, Serving Thirteenth Year as Labor Leader, Seeking Peace With Lewis Rebels

Tampa, Fla., Nov. 28 (AP).—The high command of the American Federation of Labor grappled today with the renewal of peace overtures to John L. Lewis rebel committee for industrial organization.

While trains carried homeward delegates who attended the A. F. of L. convention that closed last night, the executive council talked privately of the form the new proposal should take.

One group of leaders, contended the insurgents should be extended an unamplified invitation to meet with the federation's peace committee. Others believed the communication ought to contain a definite basis for settlement so liberal that refusal might place Lewis and his allies on the defensive.

William Green, beginning his thirteenth year as president of the A. F. of L., was hopeful the new negotiations would be crowned with success. Green, the federation's 15 vice presidents, and Frank Morrison, secretary-treasurer for the last 40-odd years, were re-elected without opposition.

The executive council was expected to have the peace proposal ready by nightfall for transmission to Lewis.

The chief stumbling block has been Lewis' flat refusal to treat with the federation personally or through a committee as long as the ten rebel unions are suspended from the A. F. of L.

That this attitude remained unchanged was emphasized by spokesmen at Washington for the committee for industrial organization. They further said that regardless of what finally comes of the negotiations with the A. F. of L., the organization drive will continue unchecked in the great mass production industries, notably steel.

Alterations Planned To Lessen Fire Hazards In School Buildings

Education Board Votes to Improve Conditions in Schools No. 1, 2 and 3 As Soon as Possible; Other Matters Considered.

STUDY OF CROWDING

Common Council Report on School Census Will Be Studied by the Board When Presented.

A special meeting of the Board of Education was held Friday evening at the high school for the purpose of receiving a report of the Building Committee relative to making certain alterations suggested by Fire Chief Murphy to lessen the fire hazard at three of the city schools. The board authorized the committee to proceed with the work of having installed in Schools 1, 2 and 3, certain improvements to lessen the danger to pupils in the event of a fire. This authority included the direction to proceed with the work as soon as possible.

Several of the recommendations which the Building Committee reported last evening were in accord with the suggested improvements made by the Fire Chief after an inspection of the school buildings and others were additional safeguards which the committee found advisable after the schools had been inspected. A number of minor changes which were recommended by Chief Murphy have already been made and the Building Committee will now proceed immediately with the major recommendations which will require considerable construction.

At the last regular meeting of the board the report of Chief Murphy was made, following an inspection and the holding of fire drills at each school under the supervision of the fire department. In every instance the buildings were emptied in less than two minutes, but there were certain conditions which existed in three of the schools which the chief felt indicated definite fire hazards. These conditions were called to the attention of the board in the report made by the chief to the Board of Fire Commissioners and transmitted to the Board of Education.

Recommendations.

At the meeting a week ago the board authorized the building committee to study the report and report back to the board recommendations for relieving conditions. Friday evening this report was made to a special meeting called for the purpose of receiving it. The recommendations were:

School No. 1.

An iron fireescape constructed on the back of the building with exits from both rooms of second floor.

School No. 2.

1. Construct an inside fireproof stair well to replace the present stairs on the Montrepose avenue side of the building, all parts to be of brick, iron and cement construction.

2. A similar construction to be placed in the building on the other side if deemed necessary, during the summer vacation.

3. Cut a door to lead from room 10 to room 11 to expedite access to fire escape and from 1 to room 2.

4. Cut door from rear of room 5 to assembly hall to provide to additional egress for students.

5. Close up door with brick in basement storeroom opening under stairs.

6. Place fire resistance glass in window under fireescape.

7. Place mesh wire on outside rail or fireescape on west side of building.

School No. 3.

1. Change back stairs and hall to fireproof material throughout, steel and concrete.

2. Place fire resisting door between rooms in basement.

The matter of securing additional portable seats and desks and also additional lockers for use in the Kingston Municipal Auditorium in January in the event there is need for them through entrance of non-resident students at mid-term, also came before the board. The supplies committee was authorized to purchase whatever necessary desks and equipment might be needed. Last year when the overflow was

Blum Warns of French Force, Japanese Labor Against German Treaty

Premier Says France Has Second Strongest Military Force; Laborites Opposed to Anti-Red Alliance.

SOVIET STRENGTH

Russia Has Doubled Submarine Fleet During Year; Other Military Gains.

Paris, Nov. 28 (AP)—Premier Leon Blum, alarmed over the turn of events in Europe, pointed warningly today to France's war strength.

Commenting on the gravity of European affairs, the Socialist premier declared France, second only to Soviet Russia, possessed the "most powerful military force in continental Europe!"

His declaration at a Socialist meeting last night was an effort to bolster the Popular Front government against menacing situations at home and abroad.

He assured the nation of France's power to resist foreign threats, warning that the "international situation has never been as serious or as dangerous in the past three months as it is now."

Blum apparently referred to the Spanish Socialist government's plea to the League of Nations to determine whether Italo-German recognition of the Spanish Fascists has threatened international peace.

Appealing for harmony among his own supporters lest the coalition government fail at this critical stage, he pledged a quick start of new social projects.

In the face of a growing wave of occupational strikes, the economic council was expected to give speedy approval to Blum's invocation of his power to compel labor disputants to arbitrate costs of living and demands for higher wages.

Laborites Opposed

Tokyo, Nov. 28 (AP)—The Japanese labor party announced today it could not support Germano-Japanese agreement against the Communist Internationale.

The party based its position on "present delicate international relations" and the contention that concrete measures already had been adopted to prevent Communism.

Its declaration was prefaced by the statement that ever since its formation, the party has opposed Communism and continuously fought it in practice.

Earlier, authoritative sources said Japan and Italy had virtually completed preliminary discussions for mutual recognition of Japanese-sponsored Manchoukuo and Italian Ethiopia.

Soviet Strength

Moscow, Nov. 28 (AP)—Russia virtually has doubled her submarine fleet during 1936, Admiral Ivan Orloff, chief of the naval forces, told the all-Union Congress of Soviets today.

Admiral Orloff announced the following percentage increases in naval equipment since January 1, 1933:

Submarines—715 per cent; warships—300 per cent; coast artillery—75 per cent; anti-aircraft guns—100 per cent; marine aviation—510 per cent.

The newest submarine figures showed rapid advances in undersea craft construction since January of this year when the percentage increase since 1933 was stated officially as 435 per cent.

The basic figures for Russian naval armament were not announced.

Urging construction of the largest fleet in the world, Admiral Orloff warned there is "a wild naval race abroad."

"In the face of all-increasing danger, especially from Germany and Japan, our party could not neglect the fleet," he told the Russian congressional delegates.

"We had to create a powerful defensive navy. We have devoted spjecial emphasis to submarines.

"We must continue to strengthen our navy so our enemies will lose their desire to attack our shores."

Treasury Receipts

Washington, Nov. 28 (AP).—The position of the treasury on November 25: Receipts, $58,963,847.89; expenditures, $79,949,711.20; balance, $1,422,261,464.23; customs receipts for the month, $30,274,474.31. Receipts for the fiscal year (since July 1), $1,612,286,262.51; expenditures, $2,942,205,825.19, including $1,145,042,108.11 of emergency expenditures; excess of expenditures, $1,229,919,464.65; gross debt, $33,798,210,241.66, a decrease of $2,116,466.75 under the previous day; gold assets, $11,162,403,462.48.

Abolition Is Ordered

Albany, N. Y., Nov. 28 (AP).—State Agricultural Commissioner Peter G. Ten Eyck proposed today that the $10,000 a year position of counsel to the state milk control division be abolished in a reorganization of his department's legal staff that he said he would recommend to Governor Lehman.

Gypsy Rose Fleeced

New York, Nov. 28 (AP).—Gypsy Rose Lee, who strip-teased her way from a 42nd street burlesque into a Broadway musical comedy, was robbed of jewelry she said was insured for $25,000 early today.

Buenos Aires Bustles In Preparation for Visit Of President Roosevelt

Posters Bearing Words of Welcome Plastered All Over City; Ceremonies Are Being Simplified to Give Time for Work.

ARRIVES MONDAY

Roosevelt Will Arrive Monday Aboard Cruiser Indianapolis; Official Visits.

Buenos Aires, Nov. 28 (AP).—"Welcome Roosevelt" posters, worded in lyrical Spanish, were plastered over Buenos Aires today by order of Mayor Mariano De Vedia.

Putting the finishing touches on plans for a tremendous reception for the United States President, the municipality also asked every one of Buenos Aires' 2,300,000 citizens to display Argentine flags from their homes Monday.

The posters, captioned "Salud Roosevelt" and "Welcome President Roosevelt," said in part:

"Buenos Aires will receive a visit from one of the highest personalities in the world, his excellency Senor the President of the United States, Franklin D. Roosevelt, who not only is chief of the nation which in every sense is the largest of the continent, not only has he just been ratified by his people by a great majority; not only is he writing history in one of the most transcendant moments of modern life, but he comes also to Buenos Aires to cement the permanent benefits of peace."

The mayor is one of Argentina's foremost poets:

Undergoing Simplification.

For the last several days the Roosevelt program has been undergoing simplification, in part because Mr. Roosevelt wants to get in as much hard work as possible during his stay.

As the program now stands, Mr. Roosevelt will arrive Monday afternoon aboard the cruiser Indianapolis, escorted by the United States Destroyer Phelps and seven Argentine warships.

Following a welcome from President Augustin P. Justo and members of the cabinet, Mr. Roosevelt will ride with the Argentine president to the United States Embassy in Palermo Park.

The emabssy has been converted into a miniature White House, with special telephone and direct cable lines already installed.

Later President Roosevelt and President Justo will exchange official visits, after which the United States President will receive several hundred members of the United States colony.

He will dine quietly at the embassy and probably spend the evening working.

Sightseeing Tour

On Tuesday, President Roosevelt probably will make a sightseeing tour of the city, have a quiet luncheon and spend the afternoon putting final touches on his speech at the opening Inter-American Congress ceremony, at 6 p. m. (4 p. m. Eastern Standard Time).

He will be a dinner guest of President Justo at Cas Rosada, with prominent Argentines and Inter-American delegates attending.

Wednesday morning Mr. Roosevelt again is expected to work at the embassy, prior to a luncheon for President Justo. He will depart Wednesday afternoon, steaming down the Rio Plata for Montevideo.

Four regiments of infantrymen from the provinces arrived by train to assist the Buenos Aires garrison in lining the streets during Monday's reception.

Seven Argentine warships which will escort the Indianapolis from a point off Maldonado, Uruguay, up the muddy Rio Plata to Buenos Aires were enroute today from Mar Del Plata. Three river gunboats will be stationed 20 miles down river from Buenos Aires to salute the United States President as the Indianapolis ascends the Plata.

Foreign Minister Carlos Saavedra Lamas visited Cordell Hull, the United States secretary of state, today for a general discussion of I. A. C. aims.

"Smkoe" Dodged as Shot Was Fired at Him; Lewis Held

John "Smoke" Watkins Proved Good Dodger and Escaped Unhit—Was Shot at by Another Negro—Sam Lewis Held on Charge—Awaits Grand Jury Action.

John "Smoke" Watkins, a negro of North street, is not only a handy man with his fists in the ring as shown in bouts he has appeared in at the Auditorium, but is also a good dodger, for if he had not been quick on his pins this morning he would undoubtedly have received a load of buckshot in his legs. Sam Lewis, another negro, was arrested by Officers Camp and Soper, following the shooting, and later in police court, where he was arraigned on a charge of first degree assault, waived examination and was held to await the action of the grand jury.

From the story as told by "Smoke" to the police following the shooting he and Lewis are employed on the Hutton brickyard on North street. This morning early the two negroes had an argument. "Smoke" claimed that Lewis made a pass at him and that he stepped inside the pass and crossed his right to Lewis' jaw and that Lewis suddenly sat down.

Then, according to "Smoke" the other negro left the brickyard, only to appear a few minutes later with a bouble barrelled shotgun in his hands. "Smoke" claimed that Lewis aimed the gun at him, and that he dodged behind a car loaded with green brick as the gun was discharged. The shot rattled against the brick, but "Smoke" escaped.

According to the police Lewis made a statement as to what was his version of the incident. The police say that Lewis said that following the argument between "Smoke" and himself he had gone to the house of William Henderson, near the brickyard, and that Henderson was in bed and he had asked Henderson if he could borrow his shotgun.

"What do you want it for?" Henderson is said to have asked.

"I want to shoot a pheasant," replied Lewis as he took the gun down from where it hung over a door and helped himself to two cartridges.

Then, from the story as gathered by the police, Lewis armed with the gun returned to the brickyard and found "Smoke" and another negro named Eckert Gilmore under one of the sheds at work.

"Look out" Lewis is said to have shouted to Gilmore as he raised the gun and aimed it at "Smoke."

Gilmore dodged and dropped to the ground as the gun went off.

Lewis, it is alleged, later returned the gun to Henderson. "Did you get the pheasant?" Henderson is said to have asked.

"No, but I made him run" Lewis is said to have replied.

Only Three Maritime Unions Have Failed To Sign Agreements to End Pacific Strike

San Francisco, Nov. 28 (AP).—One of the last obstacles to partial settlement of the Pacific coast maritime strike was attacked by peace negotiators today.

Operators of over 70 coastwise freighters called a meeting with masters, mates and pilots, only unions with which tentative agreements remain to be negotiated.

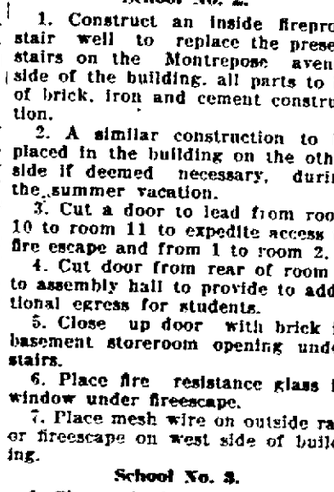

All unions but the masters, mates and pilots, have signed contracts to operate government chartered ships for carrying food supplies to Alaska, cut off from normal sources by the strike called at midnight October 29.

Col. O. F. Ohlson, manager of the government-owned Alaska Railroad, which will charter the emergency vessels, expected the officers' union to sign a contract today. He then will leave for Seattle to get food shipments underway.

In New York, striking seamen signed a working agreement last night with two affiliated steamship companies, operating three freighters. Strike headquarters hailed it as the first break in walkouts along the Atlantic and Gulf coasts following the Pacific dispute involving 37,000 union workers.

West coastwise operators reached tentative accord last night with the marine cooks and stewards. These employers, who carry about ten per cent of coast cargoes, had reached tentative agreements for new contracts with the other major marine unions just prior to the strike.

All tentative agreements must be ratified by union memberships and by the Shipowners Association of the Pacific, principal carriers of lumber from the Pacific Northwest.

FLASHES OF LIFE SKETCHED IN BRIEF

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Spare Those Tails

Memphis, Tenn.—Detective Sergeants Johnson and Stallings balk at the idea of bobbed tails for mules.

They arrested five negroes on charges of clipping the hair from the tails of a shipment of mules to sell it to clothing manufacturers for use in coat lapels.

"It takes about two years for the tail to grow back," Johnson said, "and the mules need their tails for chasing flies."

Novelty

Front Royal, Va.—When Marianna Grannis was born to Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Grannis she shattered a 250-year-old family tradition.

For eight generations only sons had been born the Grannises.

Too Safe

Burnsville, N. C.—Yeggs tried to open a safe in Sheriff Robert Presnell's office. They couldn't.

But they left the safe in such condition the sheriff was unable to open it himself and an expert had to be called from Asheville to do it.

Ethereal Robbery

Sioux City, Ia.—Grocer Robert Herzog obeyed, without a moment's hesitation, the impulse to call police when he "saw" his store being robbed.

A squad car rushed to the grocery and found it undisturbed. Herzog said sheepishly he had only been dreaming.

Scourge

Arapahoe, Neb.—It isn't their operations they talk about in Arapahoe, it's mumps.

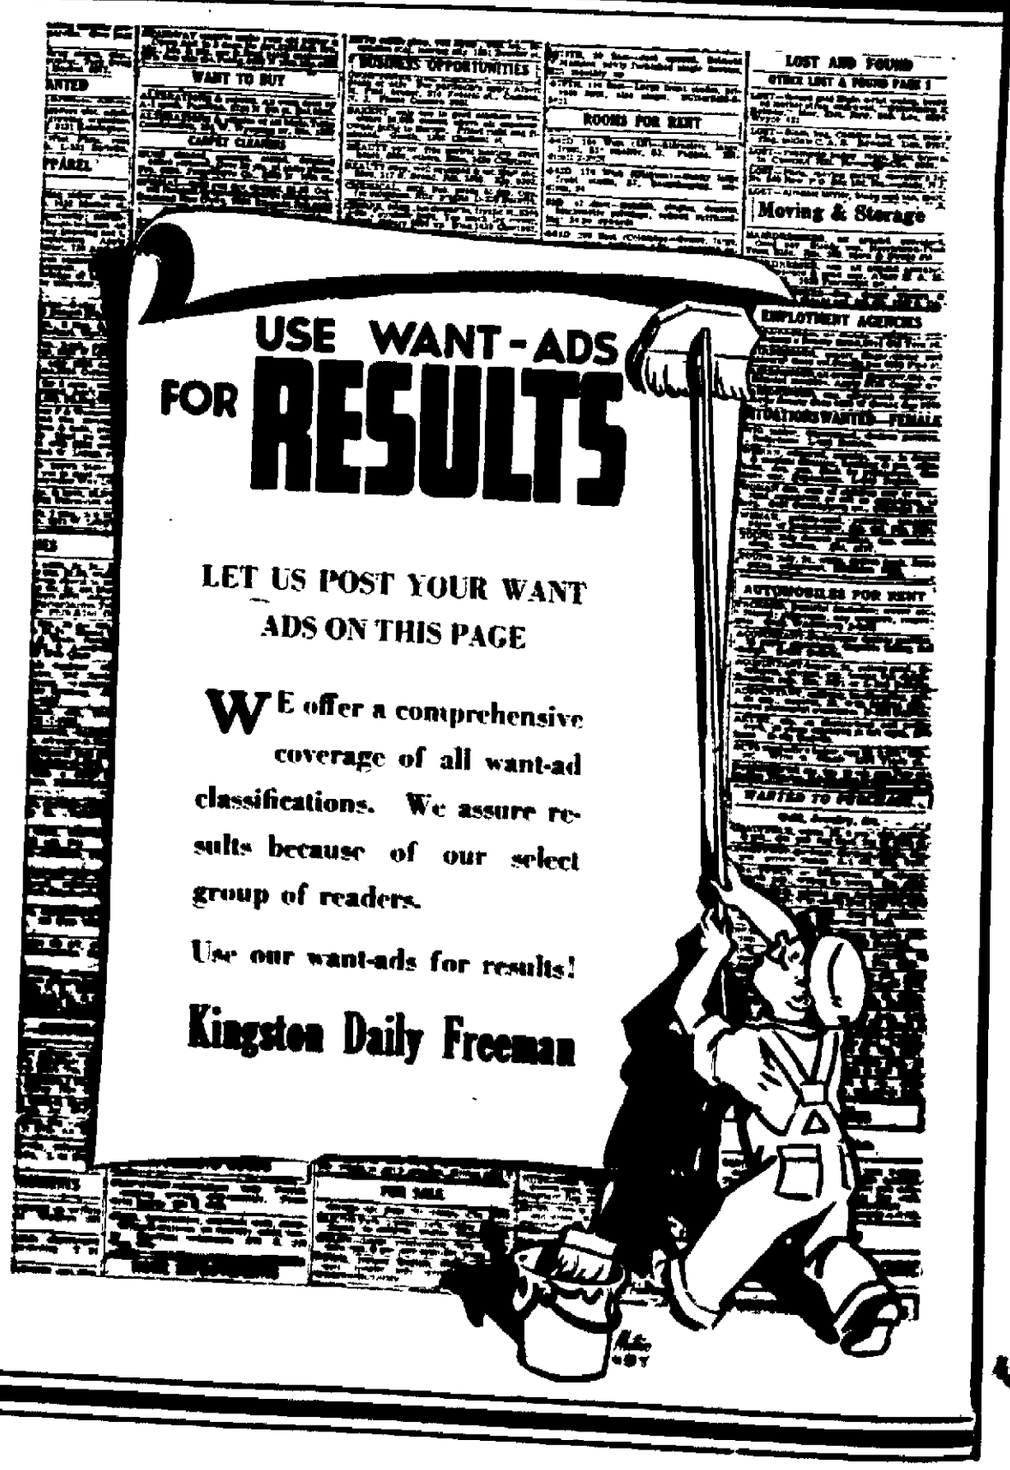

More than a third of the population—894—is either afflicted or convalescent. Seventy children were absent from school.

BUSY HOLIDAY SEASON

The best holiday season since 1929 faces business in all lines throughout the country, declares the executive manager of the National Association of Credit Men. He bases his prediction on the general current record of the reliable indices of business activity and progress.

During the past several months business has witnessed a series of events, both political and economic, that might well have retarded its continued progress, were the recovery not based on necessity, rather than speculation. In this country a significant election campaign was in progress and on the international front there were steps taken that indicated a possibility of a return at some distant date to some form of an international gold standard. When the gold bloc countries evaluated their currency there was a fear that it might upset the securities markets in this country and that there might again be a movement of gold abroad. But despite the uncertainty attendant upon the election, foreign investors were evidently not pessimistic about our future for the securities market has risen to higher levels and the flow of gold back to Europe has not appeared at this time.

On the home front business is particularly interested in the prospects for the fourth quarter of the year. It seems certain now that the holiday season this year will be the best experienced since 1929.

NATURE AND BIRTH RATE

Nearly all of the leading nations are worrying about their birthrate. The British rate has fallen one-third in a generation, and an English statistician reckons that if the trend continues the population of England will have shrunk in less than a century to about 4,000,000, only half as many as now live in Greater London. The decline of population in France is well known. Even in prolific Germany there is talk of a decline from 66,000,000 to 50,000,000 or less by 1975. Italy is losing ground too, in spite of Mussolini's propaganda.

It is lamentable according to the usual view. But really, what is the use of raising a lot more children in such countries, if they're not going to have any better chance than those already there have had lately? And that is probably just what Mother Nature thinks about it. The chances are that when life becomes more worth living for those already born, there will be less difficulty about the birth rate. Babies will just naturally come along to enjoy their opportunities. When nations are successful, hopeful and happy, they grow as a matter of course.

COOPERATION

The development of amity between business and government since the rather bitter election campaign seems almost too good to be true. Yet it is a logical and sensible development, with plenty of precedent in other free industrial countries. The ice seems to have been broken by the conciliatory attitude of the administration on the night of its great victory, and since. The President and his advisers realize that even the biggest election majority or the noblest program cannot restore the country to prosperity and happiness without the cooperation of industry, trade and finance. The latter evidently recognize today, as clearly as do intelligent bystanders, that they cannot get along without the government and the influence it exerts on public sentiment.

No more reassuring signs have appeared since the election than the friendly gestures of the United States Chamber of Commerce and the National Association of Manufacturers. The former shows more willingness to go along with the government, in essential policies of recovery and readjustment, than it has shown since 1933. The latter plans to celebrate its 100th anniversary by dinners in many key cities in honor of "a new era of good feeling between industry and the government." The general public, which "has friends on both sides," greets such demonstrations with enthusiastic applause.

HOLIDAY INCOME, OUTGO.

Predictions that Christmas trade this year will break all volume records in American history were confirmed by a nation wide survey made public recently by J. R. Ridgway, president of Investors Syndicate of Minneapolis. The special survey of holiday income and outgo indicates that Christmas shoppers will spend more than $3,970,000,000.

Americans will spend more money this holiday season because they earned more than they did a year ago and they saved more. Savings for the past year of all kinds and in all types of institutions are up more than a million.

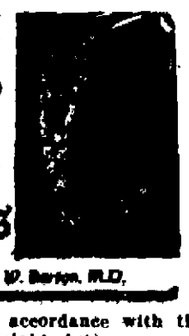

Reports from various industries and stores about their expectations on the gain in Christmas volume over a year ago range from 12 to 25 per cent. The average report, however, estimates business will be up 15 per cent from the volume of last year. Retail stores to handle such a yuletide trade volume will hire more than 600,000 extra workers during the remaining weeks preceding Christmas. These extra employes will receive about $35,000,000 in wages.

AN "ISMS" FORUM

An indoor and somewhat highbrow version of the soap-box forum for free speech has been established by the University of Minnesota. A room in the Minnesota Union has been donated for the use of people with "isms" to argue and advocate. They may assemble there and expound as much as they like, without risking violent clashes with police or opponents.

It is a sound educational idea. One of the virtues of free speech is that it permits a thorough airing of all sorts of doctrines and theories. The good ones survive. The silly and dangerous ones are recognized and more readily refuted. Emotional steam is let off by means of this freedom instead of being suppressed to the explosion point.

That Body of Yours

TO RELIEVE PAIN IN CANCER

A number of years ago, before we knew about treating epilepsy by cutting down on starch foods and liquids and increasing the fat foods, I was able to keep an epileptic free of attacks for over a year by simply washing out his stomach twice each week. Phenobarbital was not used at that time. This patient then went on a fruit farm and his attacks returned. One day he struck at a cat, which bit him, inflicting a severe wound. The arm became badly swollen (due to some poison) but under treatment he soon recovered. However, for two years following he did not have an epileptic attack. He now has them unless he protects himself with the above diet and a daily dose of phenobarbital.

Dr. M. Kirschen, Vienna, reports favorable results with the use of cobra (snake) poison on patients with cancer which cannot be operated upon, and on cancer which has returned after treatment by operation or radium.

The cobra poison relieved the severe pains and neuralgia in these patients. He reports that small doses have little or no effect upon the pain, whereas excessive or large doses increase the pains and produce severe reactions. He begins treatment with a dose of 7½ grains of cobra toxin, injecting it under the skin in the region of the hip or shoulder. At first the injections are given at three day intervals; later the intervals can be prolonged to eight days or even two weeks. Dr. Kirschen used the cobra toxin in fifteen patients with stomach cancer, three with cancer of the lung, three with cancer of the lower end of the intestine, and three with breast cancer. "It is of great importance for the usually pale and undernourished cancer patients that it is possible to relieve the pains with a remedy which does not, like morphine, reduce the appetite, and the normal defense powers of the body."

It is very gratifying then that such a remedy—poison from a snake—can give relief from severe pain to those cancer patients who are past the stage where operation or radium can be of help, and who have been, by necessity, under the powerful but depressing influence of morphine. It means that the patient can eat and sleep naturally to the end and with less distress to the family.

All members are therefore requested to be present and any others who wish to join with the Aid will be cordially welcomed.

Wings for Sally

by BAILEY WOLFE

SYNOPSIS. Sally Warren, attractive society editor of the Warrenton Courier, is secretly engaged to Terry Maynard, boyish blond aviator. But her pretty, headstrong younger sister Tip, falls in love with Terry and determines to have him. Philip Page, returning to his boyhood home, buys the Courier and backs the workmen of the Morris mill in their fight for better homes. Wealthy Mary Morris decides to pursue Philip, who is attracted by thoughtful Sally. Terry is suddenly called to South America and Sally must decide whether to marry him at once.

Chapter 18

Quarrel Over Terry

AT THE front of Sally's mind loomed the decision she knew now that she must make before she saw Terry that evening. She must go with, or risk never going with him. If she let him go to South America alone, he might tire of waiting for her. He might change. He might she

And yet, could she leave now, on a moment's notice? If her salary stopped, so would Ray's college fund. So would these new comforts for her father and mother. Had she a right to run away from her responsibilities?

Sally went home in a dream. If she had been less absorbed in her own thoughts, she would have noticed Tip's flaring color and watchful eyes—noticed how Tip jumped when the telephone rang and how Tip sprang up and ran out of the room when she heard Terry's step in the hallway.

The family gathered about Terry when he came, congratulating him. Tip was nowhere to be seen. When Terry finally turned to Sally, she had scarcely spoken to him.

"Ready to go, Sally?"

"I'll get my coat," said Sally. As she left the room, she felt the eyes of her father and mother and Ray on her. They were thinking that Terry meant to ask her to marry him, and wondering what Sally meant to do.

Sally was taking her coat from the hanger when Tip came into her room and shut the door behind her.

"Sally, what are you going to do?"

Tip's voice, so quiet and yet so desperate, made Sally turn toward her instantly. She was shocked at the suffering that showed itself in her young sister's face. Tip's eyes were red with crying, her face pale and strained.

"You know I'm going out to dinner with Terry," said Sally gently. "Surely you don't grudge me that."

"I do," said Tip, clasping her hands tightly together. "I hate you every minute you're with him." Her voice rose hysterically. "Don't try to pretend—you know you're going to tell him tonight that you'll marry him and go away with him!"

Sally felt a sick shame that she and Tip should be reduced to quarreling over Terry. It somehow cheapened her love for Terry. Sally was seized with a bitter resentment against Tip that crowded out all other emotions. Tip was spoiled. She wanted Terry as she had wanted a dozen other men, and, because she had been able to win the others, she thought she could get Terry by pouting.

"Be quiet!" Sally ordered sternly. "You're behaving like a child. You don't know what love is. You want your own way and when you can't have it you always make a row."

"That's what you think," cried Tip. "But you don't know—you don't try to understand. Terry's not—not just somebody to play around with. He's the one person I've ever loved—and if you take him, I'll never love anybody else, I know." Tip's voice broke. She sat down on the edge of Sally's bed and wept softly, hopelessly.

'He Does Love Me!'

SALLY sat down beside her and took one of Tip's hands in hers.

"Tip," she said, "don't you know that Terry has asked me to marry him, that he loves me and wants me to be his wife? Haven't you any pride left at all, that you can run after a man who doesn't want you?"

Tip shook off Sally's hand and faced her with burning eyes.

"But he does love me!" she cried, and her words had the sting of sincerity. "If you weren't blind as a bat you'd know he loves me—that I'm the right one for him, not you. Only he likes and respects you, and he'll never tell you. He'll marry you, because you want it—and I can't bear it, I can't!"

Tip's head went down on the bed again but this time Sally did not touch her. All Sally's reason fled as bright hot anger possessed her.

"Stop that!" she cried. "You're a selfish, hateful girl—and if anyone ever marries you, he'll be ashamed of you—as I am!"

"Then it's time I was getting out of this place," said Tip dully.

"It's time you got out and tried to find yourself a job. If you worked and did your share for the family you wouldn't have time to worry about how many men you can add to your string of conquests. Well, you can't add Terry. He's mine."

Tip stared at Sally, shocked out of her own grief. Sally relentlessly poured out the accumulated resentment of years of giving up to Tip.

"You're not worth all we've sacrificed for you," said Sally. "You're not worth Mother's slaving over your pretty clothes, or my furnishing your pocket money. You're not worthy of Terry Maynard's love, and I hope he'll never be blind enough, stupid enough to care for you."

"Stop, Sally," Tip said quietly, standing up. She looked her older sister steadily in the eyes. She had a strange new dignity, and Sally's wrath subsided as suddenly as it had risen, leaving her sick and ashamed.

"Go on away with Terry," Tip said. "You're right. I'm not good enough for him. Just—not good enough."

"I'm sorry," Sally meant it.

"Don't be sorry," answered Tip. "It's the truth. I've been a silly flirt. Only, give me credit, this time I know what it is to love somebody enough to feel I'm not good enough for him."

"You only think you love Terry," said Sally. "Tomorrow it will be Joe Morris or someone else."

She caught up her coat and left the room. All the way out to the car and Terry she tried to erase from her vision the tragi-comic picture of Tip, standing in the middle of the floor acting like a movie heroine, and yet, strangely sincere.

Sally was glad that Terry did not talk to her until they were out of town and well on the road to the Barn. When he did speak, he was matter-of-fact and reassuring.

"Hope the news that my big job came through wasn't too much of a shock. I meant to save it and tell you tonight, but Mom let it out to the newspaper. She couldn't wait."

"Your family's proud of you, isn't it? Mine's proud of you."

"They were afraid I'd never get a job," grinned Terry. "They're still surprised that I can really do anything anybody's willing to pay for. They think I'm being overpaid for this new job."

"You've earned it—every bit of it."

An 'Out' For Terry

THE lights of the little roadside inn loomed ahead of them. They parked the car beside several others and went in, to find the little stage of the Barn nearly full of people having supper. Later there would be a small string orchestra and everyone would dance.

Sally and Terry ordered supper and while they ate talked of everything but themselves. Terry, who had at first been his old gay self, full of exuberance over the new job, grew silent and moody as they neared the end of their supper. Sally, over the coffee, said:

"Shall we—talk about us?"

"You've made up your mind, then?" Terry asked quickly.

"Not exactly." Sally tried to read his expression. She must go carefully, remembering everything that Tip had said.

"What do you mean?" Terry frowned. "There's no more hesitating, Sally. The time's too short. Either you love me enough to marry me and go away with me now—or you don't."

"There's something else besides that," said Sally. "There's—Tip."

"You know," Terry was immensely relieved. "I told her you would. I told her somehow you'd be able to figure out it—if you knew."

"Tip thinks she loves you."

"God knows why," said Terry. "I can't make it out—how she could feel for me, stacking me up against all the fellows she's got on her string."

"That's not so difficult to understand," said Sally, and a trace of hardness got into her voice. "Perhaps it's just that—you haven't been on her string. Tip always wants what she can't get."

"Do you believe that, Sally?" Terry searched her face with anxious eyes. "That's what I've been trying to tell myself all along—it would make things—easier. Do you really believe that, Sally?"

Sally was bitterly tempted to say yes. If she did, if she told Terry that Tip was incapable of liking anyone for very long, then Terry might believe her. After all, she and Terry had been fond of each other for a long time. If he believed himself to be falling in love with Tip now, it was because Tip had been running after him, had flattered him. Sally fought down the impulse to dismiss Tip's love as pure infatuation. She must be fair, above all.

"If—if I could believe that Tip's only flirting," Terry repeated, "it would make the whole thing easier."

"I don't know," said Sally slowly, picking her words. "It's true that Tip never has been so much in earnest about anyone as she was tonight—about you. Maybe she loves you. Maybe she'll get over it and fall in love with Joe, or some of the others. I can't answer for that. I haven't the right. It seems to me that what you have to consider is—what you feel for Tip."

Now it was out. She was giving him his chance to get out of their engagement, just as she had known she would ever since Tip had spoken.

WEST SHOKAN

West Shokan, Nov. 27—The rural comedy play, "Ye Village Skewl of Long Ago," which was to have been presented Monday evening at the Olive Bridge I. O. O. F. hall, is postponed until next Monday evening, November 30. Curtain will rise at 8 o'clock.

Slippery roads and threatening rain did not spoil the usual large old home-coming attendance at the Odd Fellows' annual oyster supper held at Olive Bridge Wednesday evening. The savory piping hot oyster stew was prepared by Virgil C. Gordon. A peppy dance program followed to music by the picturesque North Shore Trio of Hill Billies. Both round and square sets were stepped off with alacrity and grace. Although the ranks of the Old Guard members of Shokan I. O. O. F. Lodge have been hard hit by the passing years, yet for all among those who responded to the Thanksgiving supper roll call included, first that grand old veteran of '88 Simon Bishop, native son of Olive, and for 55 years an Odd Fellow. Others were Henry Winchell, Ira Elmendorf, Virgil R. Merrihew, Lester B. Davis, Elmer F. Davis, Augustus Weeks, Past District Deputy Arthur E. Trowbridge and others. Among visitors of fraternal rank present were Past District Deputy Charles R. Sickler and wife of Port Ewen and the present popular deputy Newton C. Van Etten of Kingston. The lodge room proper upstairs was likewise a scene of social festivity. Hotly contested card games held magnetic fascination over several groups of players, while the children whose presence deflected not the players from their high hands or low, romped about in unhampered abandon. It was an occasion, not without its tinged memories of those whose presence in days that are gone, joined wholesomely in these self same annual events, yet with each year that rolls around there comes an irresistible yearning to re-assemble and re-weld the fraternal links of long forged fellowship.

Mr. and Mrs. Bedeginan and daughter of New York city seasoned summer residents, are among the Thanksgiving week-end guests at Maple Dell Farm.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Hyde of Main street entertained bounteously at a large Thanksgiving home gathering.

Edward Every of Kingston, well known here in the community of his boyhood, is still keenly affected from the sand bank accident sustained several years ago, when imprisoned in the cab of truck he was operating.

Cornelia Davis was entertained at Thanksgiving dinner at the home of Mrs. William Wagner and family of Main street.

Mrs. Herschel Geyer and family, Mrs. Francis Whispell and family and Miss Helen Thompson were entertained as Thanksgiving guests at the home of their grandmother, Mrs. May McGreevey, of High Point road.

The community is replete with reported home coming Thanksgiving gatherings.

Donald Bishop spent Thanksgiving with friends up state.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Condon of Palenville were entertained as Thanksgiving supper guests at the home of their former Davis family neighbors at West Shokan Heights.

Ex-Supervisor and Mrs. Lester B. Davis of Olive Bridge were among the family guests who enjoyed Thanksgiving turkey dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Weidner at Locust Hill farm.

Mrs. Charles H. Weidner and son, Skippy, have been ill at their home for several days with severe colds.

The many friends of Mrs. Charles Tyler of Traver Hollow are happily pleased that she is able to again resume her social activities after a seven weeks' illness brought about by a fall.

Martin J. Every of Traver Hollow was in Albany on Wednesday.

Community district schools are out for the Thanksgiving week-end vacation.

Miss Alberta Quick, who is attending college in New Jersey, is home with her mother in Olive Bridge during the Thanksgiving vacation.

Garageman Peter Crawford of Olive Bridge was a business caller in Kingston Tuesday afternoon purchasing an additional supply of cold weather servicing needs for his customers.

Dr. Diamond To Speak in City

Dr. Solomon Diamond, formerly a teacher in New York University, will speak on the Spanish situation, giving his audience the benefit of his experience in war-time Spain. Dr. Diamond is an eminent psychologist and traveler, spending the last four years in Europe.

He is to address a public meeting at the Eagle Hotel on Monday evening, November 30, at 8 o'clock. Everyone is welcome. The meeting is to be held under the auspices of the Kingston Branch of the American League Against War and Fascism. Dr. Diamond's personal experience in Spain during the crisis is sure to be of vital interest to all thinking people. The Spanish crisis is of such international moment and the speaker so well informed on the subject, that the meeting should prove very enlightening, the committee reports.

Part of the holiday fun is in the preparation of such confections as candies and chocolate-coated nuts. The best types of candy for the purpose are those with distinct keeping qualities, for they may be made in advance. There are a few important points to follow in making candy like a professional: Use a candy thermometer to determine the exact temperature; control the gas flame in order to boil the syrup steadily but not too rapidly, for, as the syrup thickens it easily scorches under too intense heat, with a wet cloth wipe off the sugar crystals which form on the saucepan while the candy is boiling.

TALKS TO PARENTS

Public Welfare

By BROOKE PETERS CHURCH

"Why should I be asked to subscribe to a fund for school lunches for undernourished children? Of course I am sorry for them, but most of them are undernourished chiefly because their mothers do not know how to feed them. I haven't any extra money to give away. It is not so easy to feed one's own family these days, let alone other people's."

If one's joints ached with rheumatism, one would suspect a focus of infection somewhere in one's body. If one's stomach refused to function, the whole body would suffer. The same is true of society. It is not only the undernourished children who suffer from the poverty or ignorance of their environment, but in the end one's own children as well. Dirt and disease in a slum have a direct effect on the children in the palace.

In those regions where all the children, rich and poor alike, attend public school, an epidemic may spread like wildfire, striking down the more and the less fortunate at random. It is the undernourished who are most liable to infection, but they can spread disease to the most carefully tended child. Dirt, vermin, filthy talk, skin infections, need not be confined to the poor and ignorant. They may start in slums, but they can spread to garden cities. For purely practical reasons, the parents who have the welfare of their own children at heart will do what they can for the less fortunate.

There is always, of course, the humanitarian element to be considered. Having youngsters of one's own should make one interested in all children and sympathetic with the parents who cannot always give children what they need. It is a good thing for the spiritual development of one's own boys and girls too, to learn the duty of sharing not only one's surplus, but one's current necessities, with the less fortunate in life.

Quince growing may again become an important branch of the fruit industry in western New York with the development of effective control measures for the oriental fruit moth, say Dr. D. M. Daniel and J. A. Cox, entomologists at the State Experiment Station at Geneva in summarizing four years of experimental effort in which they have developed a practical spray program against the fruit moth in quinces. The Experiment Station has published a bulletin presenting the results of their tests and setting forth the recommended spray program, a copy of which may be obtained upon request to the station.

Sundown Stories

Lamb's Thanksgiving Story

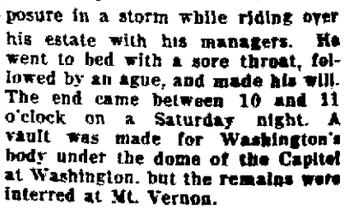

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

SWEET FACE began at once:

"There was a place called Puddle Muddle, and in it lived a wonderful, beautiful, magnificent, unselfish, kind, little man named Willy Nilly."

"Is this a story?" asked Hopey Bear. "I'd call it the truth."

"It's a true story," bleated Sweet Face, and Willy Nilly stroked his left side-whisker and felt very pleased.

"In this place," continued Sweet Face, "lived a number of animals. They were a fine lot, always ready to help each other in trouble—except there was a lamb. He didn't amount to much."

"Oh, skip that part," growled Jelly Bear. "You're O.K."

"In this place they had all sorts of things—a house, a pond, a meadow, a cave, trees, woods. Sometimes they had worries and troubles, but not often. The roads were bad, which meant they weren't bothered by outside people. Now they had all they wanted to eat—"

"Almost all," interrupted Jelly Bear.

"They had plenty of places where they could play. They had the sunshine and the breezes—"

"The sun didn't shine just for them," cawed Christopher Crow.

"Well, they enjoyed it as much as though it did," bleated Sweet Face, "and besides they weren't greedy (with one exception, maybe).

"Anyway, they were very much pleased and so one of them decided to tell a story of thanksgiving—of saying thank-you to Willy Nilly, Puddle Muddle and the whole world!

"And also to say thank-you to all the Puddle Muddlers' friends—boys and girls everywhere."

Monday—"Sleepy Bears"

Washington's death was due to exposure in a storm while riding over his estate with his managers. He went to bed with a sore throat, followed by an ague, and made his will. The end came between 10 and 11 o'clock on a Saturday night. A vault was made for Washington's body under the dome of the Capitol at Washington, but the remains were interred at Mt. Vernon.

A Washington Daybook

By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON—Eight or more years ago voices from the government, from banks and from financial exchanges were triumphantly shouting that the boom was not really a boom but was the normal American way. Then in 1929 came the crash.

When President Roosevelt announced recently at a press conference that he had ordered a study of the effect seven billion dollars of foreign money might have upon American exchange if suddenly withdrawn, some suspected he simply was taking a course different from 1929 and earlier. That he was cautioning, not whooping it up.

The obvious suggestion was that if seven billion dollars of American securities owned by foreigners were dumped suddenly upon the American market, it might play havoc.

Reason A Question

WHAT did the market do? It sagged the day after the announcement, and promptly recovered after a week-end of thinking it over. But on the day of the market recovery, Secretary Morgenthau again pointed a finger at the same situation.

There was conflicting opinion in Washington as to the seriousness of the situation. Why the sudden excitement? The same situation with regard to foreign-owned securities existed several months ago when the federal reserve board put a slight brake on market possibilities by increasing bank reserve requirements. Is there in sight now a reason for foreign investors suddenly pulling their money out of the American market?

Many do not think so. The President did not say so. Those who looked askance at European war possibilities suggested an outbreak of war might, for a time, even increase the flight of investments to the United States. Ultimately, it was generally agreed, a European war would force a liquidation of foreign accounts to raise money to buy munitions here.

One suave official said it appeared to him that besides the "scared" money rushing over here from troubled Europe, a wad of "smart" money had come to profit on the U. S. industrial rise. For every dollar of foreign money put in here during 1934 and 1935, two dollars now could be taken out because of the rise in American security values.

Old Earnings A Factor

NOT mentioned by the President, but studied closely as it can be, for lack of exact information, is the amount of idle corporation money which, under certain conditions, might be fed into the security markets. The new tax act is forcing distribution of many 1936 earnings but does not touch 1934 and 1935 earnings, which in some corporations were considerable.

That is another wind which might blow into the market, without any real check from present federal controls.

Just how much of that money is available is unknown.

Woodstock Artists Exhibit Etchings

New York, Nov. 27 (Special)—Works by three Woodstock artists have been selected for hanging in the twenty-first annual exhibition of the Society of American Etchers. Emil Ganso is showing "Metropolis," an etching and aquatint. Arthur Hutty is represented by a drypoint, "Old St. Philip's, Charleston," and R. W. Wolcesko is exhibiting his etching, "Deserted Landing."

The exhibition, containing 194 prints, all in metal plate mediums, represents the work of 156 artists in various sections of the country. It was opened to the public yesterday and will be current through Christmas Day, at the National Arts Club here.

The three artists are members of the Society of American Etchers.

NO MORE TRESSES, NO MORE DRESSES

From babyhood six-year-old Charles Richard "Dolly" Clayton masqueraded as a girl—because, his mother explained, she "had some girl's clothes" and the family was in need. A Syracuse, N. Y., merchant took the child to a store for outfitting—and his real sex was discovered. Above, Charles as he appeared with his mother, Mrs. John Clayton, before going to the barber; and later, attired in boy's clothing. (Associated Press Photo)

PAST AND PRESENT

Today

Broadway. "Libeled Lady".—Four talented Hollywood players, all stars in their own right, combine their collective talents in one of the year's outstanding comedy successes, a rapid but entertaining newspaper yarn of a lady who sues a paper for libel and of a paper that tries to counteract a five million dollar suit by compromising the lady. The reason for the play's unusual appeal lies exclusively in the acting, for William Powell, Myrna Loy, Jean Harlow and Spencer Tracy make their characters live and breathe in an otherwise make believe world. The settings are modern and attractive, the dialogue is as crisp and zestful as the situations and the entire show moves with a finished swiftness under the skillful direction of Jack Conway.

Kingston: "Cain and Mabel." Warner Brothers, makers of musicals, borrowed Clark Gable to star with Marion Davies in this song and dance affair and after all is said and done, the outcome is a very average effort made passable by the work of an excellent cast. Allen Jenkins, Roscoe Karns, Hobart Cavanaugh and Walter Catlett are among the featured players and their work bolsters a sagging plot. Lloyd Bacon directed the production and the lyrics and music for the show were done by the Warren-Dubin team. Essentially a comedy, some of the situations are really funny and Mr. Gable does well in support of Miss Davies.

Orpheum: "The President's Mystery" and "Oh Susanna". Conceived by the President of the United States as to plot structure, this mystery from the brain of Franklin D. Roosevelt tells the story of a man who tries to drop out of life and still remain alive without having to be recognized by family, friends or relatives. The play is well acted by Henry Wilcoxon and Betty Furness and it possesses an interest from start to finish. "Oh Susanna" is the other feature with Gene Autry, the singing cowboy, playing the hero with zest, courage and enjoyment.

Tomorrow

Broadway: Same
Kingston: Same.
Orpheum: "High Tension" and "Winds of the Wasteland." The business of keeping the Pacific cable free from trouble is the reason for the best of the features at the Orpheum with the brawny Brian Donlevy starred and supported by Glenda Farrell, Helen Wood, Norman Foster and Robert McWade. Here is a tale of wild adventure with some good comedy moments added to a whirlwind plot. "Winds of the Wasteland" is the added feature with John Wayne starred.

HIGH FALLS

High Falls, Nov. 28.—A quiet happy Thanksgiving was spent in most of the High Falls homes Thursday, with family friends and good cheer.

The week-end service was held in the Reformed Church Thursday night. A most helpful and practical talk was given by the pastor on "Why Are We Here?" Plan to be present next week and carry out the plan.

Mrs. Thomas Snyder entertained Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Snyder and Herbert, Jr., of Poughkeepsie on Thanksgiving.

Mr. and Mrs. Edsel Gray were happy in having their daughter, Mrs. Edsel Osterhoudt, and little granddaughter of Mettacahonts with them over the week-end.

Miss Harriet Church of Freeport, L. I., is spending the holiday and week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Church.

The necessary sanding of the streets spoiled the children's fun in sledding. Those of the older years realized the need, but felt sorry for the young people.

Miss Kathryn Krom of Valley Stream and Miss Alice Krom came home to be with their mother, Mrs. L. W. Krom, and sister, Miss Marian, for the short holiday vacation.

Tappen Camp Card Party

Auxiliary 53 of Tappen Camp will hold a card party Tuesday evening at 8:30 in Mechanics' Hall, 14 Henry street. Refreshments will be served.

Acclaimed by 1,500 men and women for his services to international friendship, particularly between the United States and Latin America, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh on March 19, 1928, received the Woodrow Wilson medal and the Woodrow Wilson Foundation's $25,000 peace award at a dinner at New York city.

Hollywood

Sights And Sounds

By Robbin Coons

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—If any one person ever sang "The Star Spangled Banner" more often or more spiritedly than Mme. Ernestine Schumann-Heink, the name does not come to mind.

I heard her sing it first in a crowded political convention hall at Kansas City, the convention that nominated Herbert Hoover for the Presidency. She sang the national anthem the opening day. She was 67 years old then, and her voice had lost some of its once glorious power.

It will do no harm now that she is gone to tell the sequel to that occasion, as she told it to me last year in Hollywood, after she had made her mark in pictures.

"I was glad to sing at the convention," she said. "I lof to sing. And 'The Star-Spangled Banner,' ach! I lof it! But I was embarrassed afterward, because they all thought I was voting for them. I did not tell them—and I do not tell it now—but I voted for Al Smith!"

All Loved Her

If ever a woman radiated kindliness and good will, her name was Schumann-Heink. She went around the movie lots, and her passing was a homely benediction to those she greeted. She was constantly being hailed by studio workers, who would say, for instance:

"I've never forgotten hearing you sing that night just before we sailed for France," and name the camp where Schumann-Heink had sung particularly for him and his comrades.

And her face would light up with memory, and she would say, "Ach, yes! Remember, it was raining that night! Gott bless you, my son!"

Schumann-Heink "lofed" everybody. "I think I am so happy," she said, "because there is no one, nothing, I do not lof. In spite of all my experiences, and much unhappiness, I am happy."

She was happy when, after she had been in and around Hollywood for years, they finally put her in a picture. It was "Here's To Romance," with Nino Martini. Out of it came something without precedent in Hollywood: rival producers began bidding for the screen services of a 74-year-old grandmother!

No Prima Donna

And when she signed a contract, she was eager to get to work. Prima Donnaé She said she would "scrup floors" if they told her to, she would do anything. They had a picture ready for her, finally. It was to have been "Gram," with May Robson. But she became ill, and besides they wanted to doctor the story before going into production. She was still waiting—for that chance "to make people a little happy once more before I go"—when she went.

The estate at Mt. Vernon, which George Washington inherited from his half-brother Lawrence, had been named by Lawrence in honor of the British Admiral, Lord Vernon, under whom Lawrence had served at the siege of Carthagena.

DON'T LET HIM LOOSE!

Perhaps here workers should have taken cover when this gigantic figure paraded Broadway, but most of them knew it was only part of an annual pre-Christmas toy parade. Men with strings kept the gas-filled terror under control. (Associated Press Photo)

Traffic Officer—See here, lady, you'll have to stop driving that car until you know the A B C's of driving.

Lady Motorist—Never heard of the A. B. C.'s of driving. What are they?

Traffic Officer—Always Be Careful.

The lightning bug is brilliant, but
It hasn't any mind;
It wanders through creation with
Its headlight on behind.

It must be that some drivers do not read else they would not drive in such fashion on the highways as to kill themselves and their passengers, in exactly the same fashion as others reported almost daily in the newspapers.

Epitaphs

Here lie the remains of Jay Archibald Low,
Who thought he could drive without learning how;
His nerve was unbounded, his steering was rotten,
This stone is put up, so he won't be forgotten.

"Hell's highway is concreted with a mixture of gin, gasoline and girls," says the Denver, Colo. Post. Gosh, and we thought it was paved with good intentions.

No matter how stormy the marriage may be the ministers do not issue rain checks.

'Twas ever thus. The Lord planted a garden in Eden, and it wasn't long before Adam noticed a chicken on the premises.

A good cure for tonsilitis is a sleeve wrapped around your neck with a young lady's arm in it.

The judge was stern. The culprit trembled.

Judge—I understand that this is the fifth person you have run over.

Speeder (hastily)—Only four, Your Honor; one of them I ran over twice.

If you cannot afford to take a motor tour, try a long walk near your town. You will see many things which you could never see from a car.

First Neighbor—Did you ever stop to figure out what it cost to raise a cat or a dog, Bill?

Second Neighbor—No, but there's a neighbor's cat around here that has cost me about a bushel of bric-a-brac, two alarm clocks, and a shot just during the last month.

A blotter absorbs everything and gives out nothing. Don't be a blotter.

He was a widower getting along in years, and no longer handsome:

Widower—You are the fifth girl I have proposed to without avail.

Girl (kindly)—Well, better wear one next time. Maybe you'll have better luck.

Lots of people stay away from church because it doesn't cost anything to go.

One way to make the weather a little wearisome is not to talk about it and not to get mad about it.

Mr. Doots—I see that in one foreign country a wife can be bought for a dollar.

Mrs. Doots—That's awful!

Mr. Doots—Oh, I guess a good wife is worth it.

Few men ever are disappointed in love until after they face the parson.

Butter Clerk—Have you ever had a lesson by correspondence?

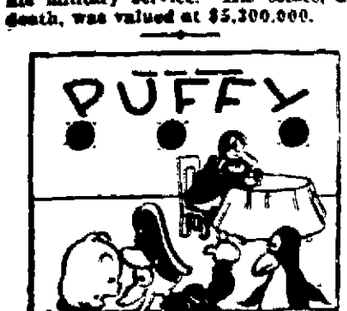

Butcher—You bet. I never write girls any more.

Men without push are always looking for pull.

Paid $10 for Fast Driving

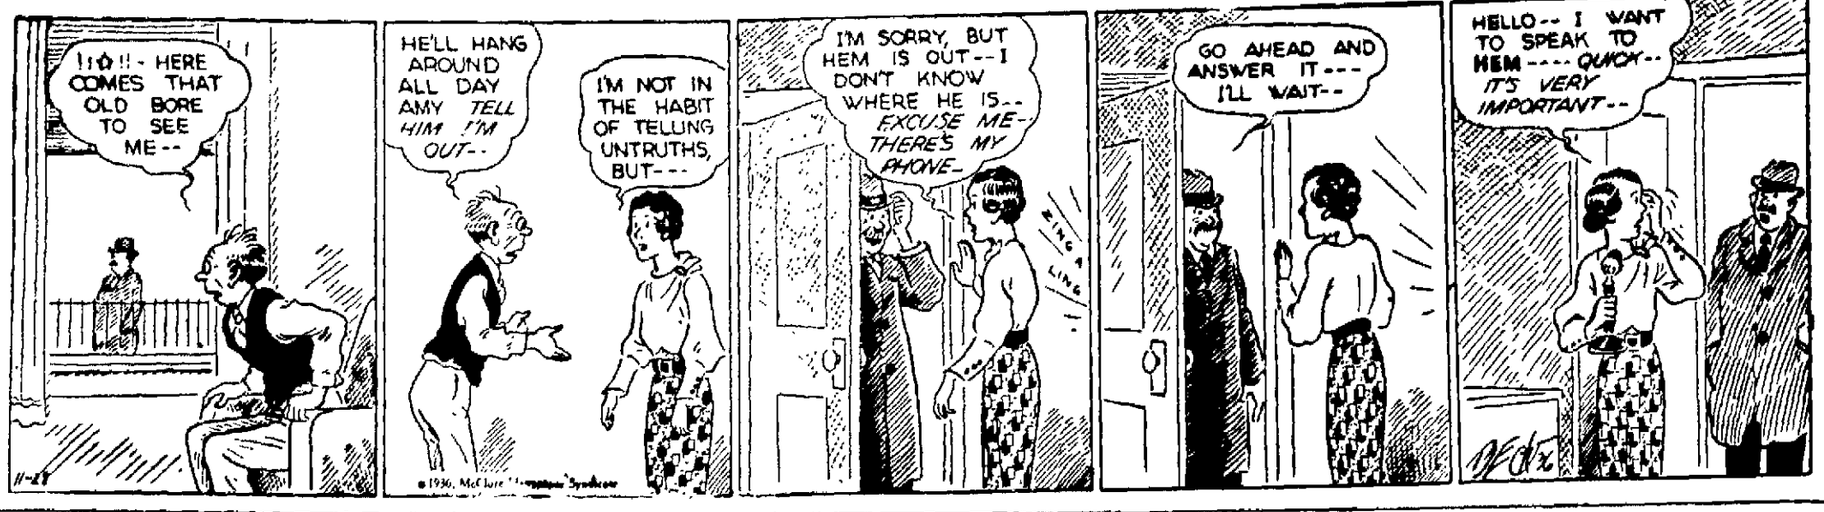

Maxwell Yellen was arrested near Highland Friday morning by Sergeant Lockhart and Trooper Baker after the troopers had taken due notice of the rate at which he was covering the distance between Marlborough and that place. He was arraigned before Justice U. Parker Ducker on a charge of driving at an excessive rate of speed and was fined $10, which he paid. Yellen is from 653 Palisade avenue, Union city, N. J.

Washington was one of the wealthiest men in the country, owning 70,000 acres of land in Virginia and 40,000 acres in the near-west, which latter Congress gave him for his military service. His estate, at death, was valued at $5,300,000.

Now Puffy and Johnny, at Captain Quack's table,
Have eaten about all the food they are able
To get down the hatch. And the captain now whispers:
"You see that fat duck—with the red head and whiskers—"

Saxophone Player Out of Luck

Leo Moser, who is leading saxophone player in Zucca's orchestra and who has also been playing with Paul Purcell's orchestra at the Golden Rule Inn, will have to "play by ear," unless someone finds and returns his portfolio of saxophone parts which he lost Saturday night after playing at the Inn. When he got out at his home at Lincoln Park the music was missing. It is thought that someone may have laid them on the running board of the car and forgot to pick them up and put them inside. There were about 150 different selections in the lot and some of them it would be difficult to replace.

NEWS OF
The World
ON WHEELS

In designing the power plant for the 1937 Chevrolet, the engineers instituted advances so extensive that the resultant engine, though adhering closely to time-proved Chevrolet principles, is new throughout, according to J. M. Crawford, chief engineer of the company. It is new not only in performance and capabilities as recorded on paper after exhaustive engineering tests, Mr. Crawford declared, but also in actual operation on the road as determined by hundreds of thousands of miles of driving prior to the introduction a few weeks ago. So far as its general type is concerned—valve arrangement and the number of cylinders—it is identical with the power plants whose high efficiency, smoothness and long life have earned Chevrolet world leadership seven years out of the past ten, the chief engineer said. It is a valve-in-head six. But bore, stroke, displacement compression, and horse power all have been changed, and the aggregate of these changes, and of general refinements throughout the engine, is reflected in exceptional performances under all conditions of weather, climate and load, according to Mr. Crawford.

The new Willys, in either the coupe or sedan models, will prove a boon to salesmen, according to Francis H. Fenn, assistant to the president of Willys-Overland Motors, Inc. "In this current model," he says, "we have made it a point to incorporate as many of the things the average salesman says he wants, as it is possible to do in any automobile.

"The coupe, which has always been a favorite with travelers, affords an unusual amount of carrying space for bags, sample cases and other equipment.

"The sedan body is so designed that the rear seat may be removed to afford the full rear compartment of the car for carrying space

"Of even greater importance to the salesman who has to budget his travel expense, is the proved low cost of operation of the car.

"The initial low cost of $595 f. o. b. factory, for the new car is only a part of the saving.

"Actual records of performance show that we are fully justified in saying that the average man can get upward of 30 miles the gallon of fuel under usual conditions of driving. This should cut fuel costs fully 50 per cent if we are to use national averages as a criterion."

Establishing a new production record, the Dodge truck plant at 11 a. m. on Tuesday, November 17, manufactured its 100,000th truck since January of this year. This was announced by Joseph D. Burke, director of truck sales for the Dodge division of Chrysler Corporation. This event was celebrated by the presence of a number of automobile executives, city leaders and newspaper men as the truck came off the assembly line. Commenting upon the record which was established Tuesday, Mr. Burke said:

"This achievement, we believe, reflects strictly the faith of the truck buying public in Dodge trucks. The large sales volume is due to a general improvement in business all over the country. The wide variety of models and sizes of Dodge trucks permits us to meet practically all types of hauling requirements, a factor that is responsible for our continuously increasing monthly sales. Present indications are that sales will increase monthly throughout 1937."

Better than 120 per cent more Oldsmobile Sixes and Eights are being sold at current automobile shows throughout the country than were sold at the same shows last year, it was announced today by H. E. Ralston, Oldsmobile's vice president and general sales manager. At the leading shows held recently in New York, Chicago and Detroit, Oldsmobile Sixes showed an increase much larger in proportion than the increase in attendance—heralded as the greatest in the history of the annual exhibitions, Mr. Ralston pointed out.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

By CLAUDE E. JAGGER

New York, Nov. 28 (AP).—Utilities carries the banner today in another stock market advance and many selected issues pushed up fractions to two or more points to new recovery tops.

Business Optimism, overshadowing worries on foreign developments, was given credit for bringing buyers out in force. Late selling stemmed the rush and extreme gains were reduced in most instances just before the close. Transfers were around 1,350,000 shares.

Outstanding shares on the upside most of the time included North American, Consolidated Edison, American Water Works, Public Service of N. J., International Paper and Power (the Preferred was up about five at the best), Electric Power and Light, U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Westinghouse, Goodyear, U. S. Rubber, Goodrich, Johns-Manville, Canada Dry, Union Bag and Paper, Santa Fe, Pullman, American Locomotive (the Preferred was ahead more than four). Baldwin, Lima Locomotive, Deere, International Harvester and Stone and Webster.

American Telephone was backward, as were Loew's and Paramount.

Bird Feathers

Bird feathers, in their symmetry and coloring, and, above all, purpose, and true fulfillment of that purpose, are among the most wonderful natural objects, whether we consider them in the aggregate or singly, one by one. Scientific studies have shown that even the smallest birds have hundreds of feathers each year, to keep them warm, shed water and, above all, form the wings and tail, without which no bird could be a bird at all, but a pathetic something in a strange and hostile world. Their feathers are their truest indicators, as we look at them. It is the feathers we see, and keep in mind, in determining the species, in most cases of identification.

Rebels Are 'Routed,' Say Madrid Reds, In the Northwest

Madrid, Nov. 28 (AP).—Madrid's defense junta announced today its troops had "routed" an insurgent army which attacked Pozuela De Alarcon in an attempt to cut the northwestern road to El Escorial.

It also asserted an international battalion on the southern front line had driven insurgents back several miles, capturing two trench mortars.

Heavy rain and clouds put a stop to operations during the day after a devastating, aerial bombardment of Madrid overnight and a new attempt by Fascists to break through government lines in the university city northwestern section.

A column of cadets, rushed through the new anti-Fascist military institute at Valencia, arrived to bolster the city's defenses. Newspapers praised the heroism of Eleuterio Perez Cornejo, 17-year-old youth, who was reported to have stopped an insurgent attack in University city sinblehanded.

Accounts of the action said Perez Cornejo dashed in front of barricades which the Fascists were attacking and put a whole tank convoy to flight with a hail of hand grenades, wrecking the leading machines.

A government "phantom column," it was reported, continued to menace insurgent communication lines in the Talavera region in the southwest.

How's That Famous Cake Made? Ah, Says Baker, It's A Knack

By PAUL B. MASON

Fort Thomas, Ky (AP)—Mrs. Sam Becker paused in the energetic stirring of two dozen egg yolks in a big blue bowl.

"And what difference would it make," she smiled, "if I did give you the recipe for my 'famous' sponge cake? The knack of making it it would still be mine, wouldn't it?"

And that is the answer to what has become a frequent request, ever since Mrs. Becker, wife of a Cincinnati clothier, came into national prominence by baking a cake and handing it personally to the President and Mrs. Roosevelt as they paused on a campaign visit here.

Farley Gets One, Too

The nation's first lady, acknowledging the act in a letter, termed the cake "delicious."

Early this year, Mrs. Becker baked a similar cake for the inaugural banquet of Gov. A. B. Chandler of Kentucky. Postmaster-General James A. Farley tasted it and "hinted" for one for himself. He got it and likewise sent his "cordial thanks" and testimonial of its excellence.

What is there about Mrs. Becker's sponge cakes that make them "different?"

Mrs. Becker, tall, auburn-haired mother of a daughter, 18, and a son, 15, professes she doesn't know.

How is it made?

Lots of Cinnamon

Well, the recipe which she says came from Russia and has been handed down from her great-great grandmother, calls for two dozen eggs "and some sugar and butter and some cinnamon."

But there again, just how much sugar and butter and cinnamon she won't say because, she explains, "It's a family secret."

Friends who recently were favored with what she described as a duplicate of the cake given to the Roosevelts were struck by its resemblance—except in color—to the moist fluffiness of angel food.

The analogy stops there, perhaps, and one is surprised further to find "pinches" of ground cinnamon flecked through his fine-grained texture.

Mrs. Becker graciously imparts a "secret."

There is, she says, the tiniest bit of cinnamon flavoring in the cake itself, aside from the ground product dotting the slices. This housewives may accept as something out of the ordinary. If not new—for almond, lemon or vanilla extract is the more usual flavoring for cakes of that variety.

Dislikes Icing

Mrs. Becker, who insists she is "just a homey housewife who loves to cook" despite her prominence in club affairs, says she "will ice a cake if they ask me to," but prefers them "as they are."

She explains: "Too much sweet is too much."

And what does her family think of it all?

Mr. Becker, sports enthusiast and a leading Cincinnati clothing merchant, says he "even gets letters from woolen mills" with whom he does business, saying the writers "expect to sample that sponge cake some time."

Dorothy, attractive daughter whose education as a student in Wellesley College "will not be complete until she learns to make that cake," frequently gets one by mail her mother says.

Hand Bags Are 'Growing Up'

By ALICE MAXWELL

Paris (AP).—Hand bags grow longer, shoes taller, to keep pace with slimmed silhouettes and shorter skirts.

The shoes have high cut fronts and tall tongue pieces. The purses are long-drawn-out from small tops. A "dunce cap" shape of black antelope starts in a sharp point accented with a big round turquoise. Thin triangles of purple and wine-colored suedes make other long purses.

For tailored use there is a new box calf bag with a flap closing. On the outside of the flap are twin purses securely snap fastened, one designed for change, the other for tickets, handkerchiefs or memoranda.

Painted Purses.

Painted fabrics are being drafted into service to make unpretentious evening purses. One in black satin is mounted on a gold frame to set off a striking painted pattern in gold and multi-color.

High Tongues.

For resort wear there is a new sports shoe in mustard yellow suede banded twice across the toe with royal blue kid. The wide tongue is punched full of holes in the thorough-going manner of a sieve.

Some of the new tongues are so tall they need to be anchored into place. These are run through with a lacing that goes around the top of the shoe and ties over the tongue piece.

Highest among the high cut models are the boots that come up clear to the ankle and lace at back or side. A new version has a suede front, a box calf back, and a lacing down the side where the two meet. A cuff top, stitched and pointed, makes a decorative finish.

IT'S THE TOP
Here is one of the new top handled bags which are smart this season. It is made of black antelope and has as its only accent three long script metal initials clasped to the handle. It steps out with a black faille afternoon suit worn with a white blouse and a black antelope hat.

A pompon chrysanthemum is the most brilliant of all boutonnieres. Both men and women wear it.

No. 2402

This one piece knitted dress has all the charm of an elaborate creation, yet it is very simple to do and uses the new magic flake yarn, to give it a smart tweed material. Note the plain round neck, the set-in tight fitting sleeves and the slenderizing line down the center front as well as the well-fitting straight skirt, all worked in to stockinette stitch. Send for the instructions to make this garment, enclosing a stamped self-addressed envelope to Editor Woman's Page, Kingston Daily Freeman, Kingston, N. Y.

Rush in Lamps

Modern rooms are shown with built-in lighting effects and in some cases, actual lamps are built in desks or book-case that are built into the room. The bases, in such cases, are of a matching or contrasting wood and only the bulb and shade need be purchased separately.

If you don't expect to change the water in your flower arrangement as often as necessary, put a few pieces of charcoal in the bowl. They will assist in keeping it sweet.

Uninteresting pieces of furniture of poorly finished wood or metal can be given character if painted in attractive coloring. Card tables, end tables, etc., will have a more pleasing appearance if painted in cheerful color scheme. Interweave red with jade green, brown with old gold, or two tones of blue.

A light in a large closet is decidedly helpful. There need be no rummaging around for the proper dress or piece of linen.

HELPING HOUSE PLANTS GET USED TO NEW ENVIRONMENT

By The Master Gardener

Even the blooms of the last hardy chrysanthemums are probably things of the past in your garden now. But while our outdoor gardens are dormant, we can still have green growing beauty in our house plants.

There are precautions which we must take, however, in reproducing as nearly as possible the outdoor conditions under which each plant grows, if we are to have any degree of success in growing them in our homes.

One of our leading agricultural colleges some years ago conducted a survey by questionnaire, to see which factors affected plants most in the home. One of the most injurious factors was the presence of gas in the home. Gas used in cooking proved most injurious. It takes a very slight amount of gas in the air of a home to be injurious to plants, so look at all leaky pipes or a leaky gas stove, and do not turn a gas burner or fixture on for several seconds prior to lighting it. Also, ventilate the house frequently to assure the plants fresh air, but in doing so do not allow a direct draft to blow on the plants.

Another very important factor was the temperature maintained in the home. The figures in this survey showed that the person who keeps his house cool has three times as good a chance to grow plants as has the one who keeps it above 70 degrees F. Where a temperature below 70 degrees F. was maintained, very few reported failure in growing plants.

Too little light was a common cause of failure, especially when coupled with high temperatures. South and east windows were considered the best exposures. Choose plants which are at home in the light you have available. If you do not have very much light, choose foliage plants recommended for such conditions.

Poor drainage was given as a frequent cause of failure with plants. In potting plants, be sure that adequate drainage is provided.

Lack of nourishment is a common cause of failure. Remember that house plants draw their nourishment from a very small amount of soil. Proper food is one factor that can be easily taken care of through regular feeding with a complete balanced plant food. Feed plants every four to six weeks, according to the manufacturer's directions which will be found on the package.

Correct watering is a very important factor. Length of time between waterings varies with the plant, size of pot, and conditions maintained around the plant with regard to heat and ventilation.

Another important factor is maintaining humidity of the air. Plants will not flourish in a dry atmosphere. This may be accomplished by the use of humidifiers on radiators. The air can also be kept moist by placing the pots in a pan of pebbles, in which water has been placed to a height which will not reach the bottom of which will not reach the bottom of the pot. Thus the roots will be kept out of standing water, yet there will be a constant evaporation of moisture and this moist air will surround the plant. There are also now on the market mats of various absorbent materials, which if placed under the pot will provide constant evaporation of moisture.

Practice good plant sanitation as a safeguard against insects and disease. Wash the leaves of plants regularly, either by sponging or spraying. Remove dried and fallen leaves.

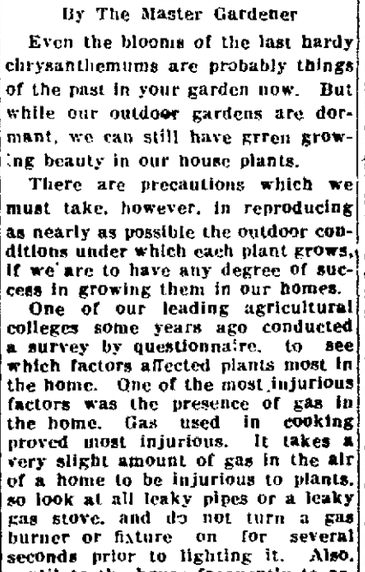

TIDY GARDEN FOR SPRING TO SAVE WORK AT BUSY SEASON

Tidying up the garden for the dormant months of winter is a job gardeners often put off until snow flies, and then forget about it. They are sorry in the spring, when added work is no pleasure for that busy season, and of course the garden remains more or less unsightly during the winter, even if it is covered with snow part of the time.

Go over the lawn throughly, trimming the edges along walks and paths, and raking up leaves. Spade up the vegetable and cutting gardens, and loosen the soil in borders, around shrubs and trees. If the winter freezes and thaws have a chance to work on well-loosened soil, it will be in much better mechanical condition for spring planting.

Examine permanent garden furniture, arbors or pergolas to see if they need strengthening to withstand the stormy winter months.

Novel Method Suggested For Keeping Cut Flowers

WATER CAN BE DRAINED FROM AN ELABORATE ARRANGEMENT WITHOUT DISARRANGING BY USING PIECE OF RUBBER TUBING AND A GLASS AS A SYPHON. REFILL WITH FRESH WATER.

Most of us have an ice box, and it is often large enough to hold a large bouquet of roses or carnations, but because it is used for other purposes, little room may be left for flowers. If flowers are to be kept cool, some other method must be found.

A good substitute for the ice box is a wrapping of moist newspapers. Go about it in this manner. First, dip the flowers in cold water to the blossoms. Then, wet a cloth and wrap it around the ends of the stems. Now wet several newspapers and wrap the flowers in them, leaving one end open, and taking care not to crush or dampen the fragile petals.

Newspapers have a water absorbing nature which allows them to remain wet for several hours if kept out of the sun, and by surrounding the flowers with this moisture, they will be kept in a humid atmosphere, and the continuous vaporation of moisture will cool the air and provide a makeshift ice box of sorts.

This practice can also be worked with whole arrangements, and without disturbing them. Take the arrangement to the basement, or the coolest place in the house. Set it on a table or floor where water will not harm anything, and make a frame work of wet newspapers around it, using a stick or box where necessary to support them. It is surprising how much cooler the atmosphere will be inside this covering.

Another method of preserving cut flowers is to cut the stems under water each day as you add fresh water. This will cause a stronger sucking action in the stems, and results in their taking up more water.

The life of cutflowers is all too short, but being short we value them more, and if we can lengthen their span of beauty, it gives us much satisfaction. Fortunately, there are many things we can do to win this satisfaction.

We might well follow the example of the florist, whose business it is to keep flowers always looking beautiful. There are many precautions he observes, such as fresh water at short intervals, cutting of stems with a sharp knife, etc., but the most difficult one of his preservatives to imitate at home is the huge ice box in which he can keep flowers cool.

Mexican Motifs Enliven Linens

Gay Cross-Stitch Designs Revel In Colors

By ELISABETH MAY BLONDEL

Prepared by McCall's Magazine For The Freeman

With peasant styles so popular and with colorful Mexican ware gracing the smartest tables, hand-decorated linens with Mexican designs were bound to come. And now they are here.

Tablecloths, table runners, napkins, scarfs, curtains, guest towels—there are so many things for which the Mexican motifs in cross-stitch are delightfully "right." And quaint and vivid color just glows from these designs—fiestas with dancing couples; street vendors, men and women carrying their wares on their heads; the lively burro with his load—all are there, with their scenery of palms and cacti.

Multi-color cross-stitch in bright red, black, light and dark green, yellow, orange, light and royal blue, pink, deep violet and medium brown, is worked out in embroidery cottons, 10 crosses to the inch. And it is really very easy, as the complete designs can now be obtained in the convenient hot-iron transfer patterns.

For informal luncheon and dinner clothes, the designs can be arranged in a variety of fascinating ways and they make the perfect setting for Mexican pottery dishes and colored glass—yellow or brown pottery with red glasses, for instance.

In arranging the pictures on the cloth—an oblong motif, including the dancers and other smaller motifs, may be worked in the center of a large cloth, 54x72 or 72x90 inches. On square cloths, the dancers may be arranged in a circle at the center, with banding radiating to the four corners.

A pair of dancers on each end is right for runners; palm trees and banding for place mats.

5,000 Seal Letters Mailed Thursday

With Uncle Sam's postal Department as a silent partner, the Ulster County Committee on Tuberculosis and Public Health started its "buy Health" campaign on Thanksgiving day by mailing 15,000 letters each containing Christmas Seals or Health Bonds to residents in all parts of Ulster county. The campaign will continue until December 25. The letters explain the health needs of the county. Recipients are asked to spread the message of health preservation by placing twin seals on all letters and packages. The money realized from the sale of the penny seals is used to prevent the spread of tuberculosis in Ulster county.

The committee headquarters at 74 John street is now a scene of much activity where everyday hundreds of letters with contributions are being delivered by the postman. Clerks are very busy taking care of these letters and also the folks who come in personally with their contributions and often with a few words of commendation and encouragement to the committee who are working tirelessly through the year in this program of tuberculosis prevention.

Young Purchases White Rock Farm

George J. Young, superintendent of Lake Mohonk, purchased the White Rock farm on the Canaan road adjoining the Mohonk properties from the Hudson Counties Estates, Inc.

This was originally the Davis homestead and for the past 10 years was occupied by Asa Van Vliet. This spring when the large barn on the property was struck by lightning and destroyed, the property was conveyed to the Hudson Counties Estates.

It comprises 45 acres, level to rolling cleared land and woods and overlooks the Wallkill Valley. It is sheltered from the north by the abruptly rising outcropping, granite cliffs from which the farm derives its name. The property is improved with an eight room house, a barn and two car garage.

Mr. Young purchased the property as a real estate investment and is proceeding to modernize the house.

The sale was consummated through the real estate agency of Nathaniel B. Gross of 277 Fair street, Kingston, in cooperation with Sam N. Mann, real estate broker, of 56 Abeel street.

Poet to Lecture Here December 2

WILLIAM ROSE BENET

William Rose Benet, poet, will appear at the Kingston High School Auditorium on December 2. His lecture will be another in the series brought here by the Schoolwomen's Club. He is the author of "Golden Fleece," "Rip Tide," "Starry Harness" and other volumes.

William is the elder of two brothers, his younger brother, Stephen Vincent Benet, being widely known as the author of that celebrated American epic, "John Brown's Body." Both brothers are the sons of the late Colonel James Walker Benet of the Ordnance Department, U. S. Army. Their grandfather, Stephen Vincent Benet, at one time was Chief of Ordnance, with the rank of Brigadier General.

In spite of this military background, William early turned to literature. He inherited his love of it chiefly from his father, who in private life, was a man enormously well-read, with keen literary judgment. It is therefore not altogether surprising that both sons became writers.

A province that William Rose Benet has made peculiarly his own is that of narrative poetry, exemplified by his many adaptations of the ballad, ransacking the history of the world for his material, from that of ancient Egypt and the Italian Renaissance down the fantasies of the early American outlaw, Jesse James, and the cowboy of the old west.

"Turkey Pickin's" Death.

Brooklyn, Nov. 28 (AP).—Homicide detectives today investigated the sudden "turkey pickin's" death of a 10-year-old Brooklyn girl, Louisa De Angioletti. The girl died after she had eaten the remains of a Thanksgiving turkey, succumbing before the family physician could reach the house. Detectives listed the death as "suspicious," saying rigor mortis had set in within half an hour after the girl died. A physician said it was definitely not poisoning from the turkey itself.

Rubio Brothers, CCC Lightweights, Will Fight Here Next Friday Night

The Rubio brothers, Norm and ck, two sensational lightweights, veloped at the CCC Camp, Ancram, Y., will be seen in action at the uditorium next Friday night, in pporting bouts to the Joe Furlin-rankie Baumgartner return match, eaturing the fistic bill.

Dick Rubio, the younger of the o, will punch it out with Pat Torre Albany, and Norm will trade ather with Harris Blake of Buffalo, ho holds a decision over Joe hurch, Olympic boxer, and is cham-ion of his district in the A. A. U. nks.

The Rubio boys are in big demand l along the Hudson valley, wher-er fights are held, and their pres-nce on the Mayor's Industrial Com-ittee card should help to make it ne of the best boxing bills ever ar-nged in these parts.

The main attraction between Fur-n and Baumgartner is a fistic natu-l that is counted on to pack the uditorium to the capacity. These o met November 20 and fought e slashing rounds. Baumgartner as given the decision, but his win as unpopular, most of the fans reeing with Johnny Carpino, ex-htweight, who voted for Furlin.

Furlin himself was furious about e official verdict, and swore he'd ver fight in Kingston again. When was informed that most of the ns were with him, he agreed to, d in fact insisted on a return atch, to prove his superiority over e Saratoga Iron Man.

Another natural on the card is the mi-final pairing between Charlie orezzi, Albany district bantam-eight champion, and Kid Chapple, ingston knockout artist, who flat-ened Joe Candiani a week ago.

Henry Picard Is Favorite on Links

Augusta, Ga., Nov. 28 (AP)—Henry Picard went into the $5,000 Augusta pen golf tournament's second round oday as favorite in the field of 214.

The Hershey, Pa., professional's ow of 69 in yesterday's initial 18 oles had him posted at odds of 4 to 1 to take the 72-hole event.

Horton Smith of Chicago and Tony Manero of Greensboro, N. C., who trailed Picard with sub-par 70's, ere next choices at 6 to 1.

Offerings were 10 to 1 on Jimmie Hines, 71, Craig Wood, 71, and Johnny Revolta, 72. Bobby Cruik-shank and Byron Nelson, with 71's, Henry Shute, 72, and Paul Runyan, 72, were quoted 12 to 1.

Noted Captures

Governor Peter Stuyvesant, of Manhattan, captured Forts Trinity and Christiana (Wilmington) in New Sweden (Delaware) in 1655 and ordered that Swedes who did not swear allegiance to Holland should be deported. The Dutch claimed the territory by right of purchase from the Amerindians; but the artful redskins had also sold the land to the Swedes. Governor Peter didn't know it, but while he was running the Swedes out of Delaware, Amerindians were running the Dutch out of Manhattan. The day before his assault on Forts Trinity and Christiana, Amerindians swooped down on his home town, massacred 100 whites and carried off 150 more.

The Herb Rosemary

The famous herb rosemary got its name in a roundabout manner. Probably it was too much to expect the common people to let pass such a word as the Latin "rosmarinus," the scientific name of the genus. The syllable "ros" means dew, and "marinus," of the sea, the whole signifying dew of the sea, referring to the gray green of the foliage.

Ross Victorious, Will Box 4th Time Against McLarnin

New York, Nov. 28 (AP)—The fight decks were cleared today for the repetition of an old but popular ficti number—the fourth duel between Barney Ross and Jimmy McLarnin, for the welterweight championship of the world.

Ross, the sharp-eyed, sharp-hitting Chicagoan, paved the way for the return match by achieving a decisive 15-round victory last night over his rugged New York challenger, Izzy Jannazzo. Ross weighed 143¼, Jannazzo 145¼.

To the surprise of no one around the ringside and despite some evidence of derision among 8,484 cash customers who contributed a disappointing gross "gate" of $22,840, Ross outpointed Jannazzo from start to finish, floored the challenger twice for brief counts and won going away.

The Madison Square Garden management, which guaranteed Ross $32,500 for his first title defense since he regained the crown from McLarnin a year and a half ago, took the biggest share of punishment.

The only satisfaction for the promotion department is that it has both Ross and MsLarnin tied to contracts. They may be brought together again before the indoor season closes, and while the rivalry is considered "hot," but the chances are that both boards of strategy will hold out for an outdoor "shot" and a bigger gate.

In three previous outdoor matches, Ross has beaten McLarnin twice but ringsiders last night rated the Irishman at least an even chance to regain the 147-pound crown, on the basis of comparative performances within a space of a week. McLarnin gave a shellacking to the lightweight champion, Lou Ambers, a week ago.

Church Basketball League Games Scheduled for Monday at Y.M.C.A.

First place will be at stake in the Church Basketball League on Monday night at the Y. M. C. A., when the Clinton Avenue M. E. five meet the strong Redeemer quintet. Both clubs are undefeated, each having scored four straight victories by turning back the other league entries.

The Redeemers have turned in the highest scores of any team in the loop, placing four of their players on the first ten in the individual scoring list. However, the Clinton Avenue boys have compiled a fine defensive record. In four games played their opponents have scored a total of only 44 points, an average of 11 points per game. Based on these figures, the game should be the best so far this season.

Preceding this battle the First Dutch and Comforter Missions meet. This likewise should prove to be interesting, as one of the clubs will notch their first victory. The game is slated for 7:15, with the Redeemer-Clinton Avenue clash at 8:15, and at 9 o'clock the Comforter Aces meet Port Ewen M. E., which has suffered two straight losses after a winning streak of 14 games. Dutch Craw and Bobby Cullum will officiate. The standings:

	Won	Lost	Pct.
Redeemer	4	0	1.000
Clinton Ave. M. E.	4	0	1.000
Port Ewen M. E.	2	2	.500
Comforter Aces	2	2	.500
First Dutch	0	4	.000
Comforter Missions	0	4	.000

Herd from Ulster High for October

Ithaca, N. Y., Nov. 27.—Among New York's 104 dairy herd improvement associations, high herd for the month of October is owned by Jesse Deyo of Ulster county, according to a summary compiled by G. W. Tallby of the State College of Agriculture.

Mr. Deyo's herd of 17 registered Holsteins averaged 1,497 pounds of milk to the cow and 54.7 pounds of butterfat. His herd has also averaged 350 pounds of butterfat yearly for the past five years. In second place during October is the herd of eight registered Holsteins owned by Lawrence Fox of Wayne county, with an average of 1,351 pounds of milk and 50.9 pounds of butterfat.

The Deyo and Fox herds were the only ones to exceed 50 pounds of fat to the cow. Thirty-two other herds averaged more than 40 pounds.

According to Mr. Tallby, dairy herd improvement associations bring out the high producing herds and also reveal the poor producers. During October, from the herds of 50 associations, 135 cows were sold because of low production, and 122 were sold for dairy purposes.

At a recent meeting at Cornell of testers in these associations Ernest Newell of Columbia county was elected president and Ray Leonard of Jefferson county vice-president for the coming year.

Snow and Wind Sweep Over State

(By The Associated Press)

Blustery winds swept up-state New York today, bringing occasional snow flurries in scattered areas and keeping the temperature well below the freezing point.

The Buffalo area reported an overnight snowfall of about two inches. High winds blew downtown streets clear, but snow was drifting badly on country roads. Two persons were killed in a collision between an automobile and a truck during poor visibility caused by the storm.

In Albany the temperature dropped to a low of 13 degrees above zero during the night as piercing winds howled through the city streets. The Weather Bureau reported a minimum of eight degrees at the Albany airport.

Freezing temperatures, accompanied by a light snowfall, produced ice scenery at Niagara Falls.

At Rochester the temperature was 24 degrees this morning, with high winds and snow flurries. Icy roads hampered traffic.

The Syracuse Weather Bureau forecast snow during the day, with gradually rising temperatures followed by colder weather tomorrow. The temperature there was 22 degrees at 8 a. m.

Thanksgiving At TB Hospital

This goon Thanksgiving Day was a particularly festive day at the Ulster County Tuberculosis Hospital, owing to the fact that 32 patients were well enough to enjoy their turkey dinner - a sumptuous one, too—in the dining room. The tables were prettily decorated with lotten chrysanthemums and for favors the girls of the Lake View Club of the Y. W. C. A. gave each patient a basket of candy daintily done up in golden cellophane and the Ladies' Auxiliary also gave pretty little turkey baskets filled with candy. The napkins with the proud bird of Thanksgiving for decoration added their bit to making the tables gay and festive.

Men and Missions Day Here Sunday

Sunday morning at 11 o'clock, the Tremper Avenue Free Methodist Church will hold its annual "Men and Missions Day." An attempt was made to secure the Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Haley, lately returned from Africa, but because of poor health they will not be able to attend, but Mrs. Dorothea G. Smith, the pastor's wife, will have charge and both the pastor and daughter will take part.

The Rev. Mr. Smith's father and mother were missionaries to Africa in 1902 and he will have some interesting things to tell of the adventures his folks had while there. Little Alice Marie will sing with her father the chorus of "Yes, Jesus Loves Me" in the language they used on the field when her grandfather was a missionary. She will also sing in two other languages besides her own.

Mrs. Smith, the president of the Women's Missionary Society, having made an intensive study of the various missionary fields, will have some very interesting material which she will present in her address. She will also have some pictures of missionaries and their work in Africa and China.

LANGUAGE BARRIERS DROP FOR TOURISTS

Americans Have Little Difficulty in Europe.

Washington, D. C.—Not so many years ago, Americans making the "grand tour" of Europe, were completely dependent on interpreters. Today, in most of the large cities of western Europe the American traveler can get along even if he speaks no language but his own.

"It comes as a pleasant surprise to Americans making their first trip to Europe that many more Europeans speak English than they had supposed," says the National Geographic society.

"In Paris and Amsterdam this is especially true. Let an American ask a bus or tram conductor in stumbling French or Dutch to notify him which is his stop, and a helpful passenger may inquire in good colloquial English, 'Just where do you want to get off?' Let an American girl stroll through the noisy, colorful market of Les Halles in Paris and she is likely to be 'kidded' in English with cries of 'Hello, darling,' 'Hello, sweetie.'

"English Spoken."

"In many of the European capitals, shop windows bear gladdening signs of 'English Spoken,' and in the chief show places one finds native guides lecturing in English, as well as in the country's language. Parties of tourists shuffling through the old red ruins of Heidelberg castle hear its features pointed out first in German and then in English. Visitors to the Peace palace at The Hague in The Netherlands will hear the guide describe the meeting chamber of the World court in succession in Dutch, English, French, and German. When an Italian guide conducts sightseers through the terraced gardens on Lake Maggiore's Isola Bella, his English version, in comparison with his flowery Italian lecture, sounds very terse. A tree about which a fervent oration has been made in Italian may be explained by the scant comment, 'Camphor tree.'

"Strangely enough, some of those whose accents tourists have most difficulty in understanding are Englishmen conducting parties through Westminster Abbey.

"The difference between the 'King's English,' as it is spoken in the United States, and on its native heath, is apparent the minute an arriving American enters the station at Southampton. Porters, instead of asking for bags, or baggage, say, 'Any luggage? Luggage, sir?' At hotels one takes a 'lift' instead of an elevator.

"One takes the 'underground' in London instead of the subway; and in traffic, instead of being told to 'Look out for the truck,' one is cautioned to 'Mind the lorry.' If the King's English sometimes sounds a bit stiff to American ears, as on the sign, 'Touch not armour,' in the Tower of London, it nevertheless seems to express the English love of law and order.

Use Several Languages.

"Even if an American should chance to visit an out-of-the-way place in Europe where natives shrug uncomprehendingly at his English, he may strike out in any one of several foreign languages with a fair chance of being understood. Most Europeans learn at least one other language besides their own. Signs are frequently printed in more than one language. In the railroad station at Basel, Switzerland, on the border of France and Germany, passengers are forbidden to cross the tracks, in German, English, French, and Italian.

"Although no sign in his railroad compartment says 'No Smoking,' an American will lack an alibi for lighting his pipe if he reads Italian, French, or German, for the same sign will read 'Vetato fumare,' 'Defense de fumer,' 'Nichtraucher.'

"French is one of the most useful languages to the traveler in Europe, especially in Italy where many Italians speak French.

"The occasional time-saving conciseness of English as compared to the apparent verboseness of other languages is obvious in this notice on the entrance to Interlaken's Kursaal. While it says in German 'Hunde in den Kursaal mitzufuhren ist nicht gestattet,' and in French 'Il est interdit d'amener des chiens au Kursaal,' it covers the matter in English with the brief 'Dogs not allowed.'"

First Matches Poisoned Workers and the Users

The match industry began in 1830, Springfield, Mass., was the first city in this country to boast a factory.

The white or yellow phosphorus used at first was such a dangerous poison that many governments looked with disfavor upon the distribution of matches, asserts a writer in the Washington Post. Many of the factory workers were poisoned, as were hundreds of careless citizens who handled the matches. It was not until the discovery of red phosphorus which is harmless, that matches came into general use.

Safety matches, which strike "only on the box," were first invented in Sweden. They are like other matches, except that the phosphorus is spread on the side of the box instead of the head of the match.

In match manufacture, clear, white pine, free of knots, is cut into blocks as thick as the match is long. These are sliced as they move forward in a great automatic machine, the slices then being cut into splints.

The splints are fed on to a belt, which carries them to the dipping tank, where they are dipped and dried, first in paraffin, then in the paste which makes them ignite.

Sawmill Near Phoenicia Burns

Fire last evening destroyed the sawmill of Charles Duloff which was located across from the former C. C. C. Camp at Boiceville. The equipment and a considerable amount of firewood and lumber stored at the scene was burned although some of the newly sawed lumber was saved through the efforts of neighbors and members of the Phoenicia fire department which responded to a call for aid. It was stated that about 25 cords of firewood was burned.

Flames were first observed by Mrs. Duloff when she looked from her kitchen window about a quarter of a mile from the mill. This was shortly after the mill had been closed for the day and Mr. Duloff had just arrived home. The caretaker at the abandoned C. C. C. Camp across the state highway notified the Phoenicia department but due to the scarcity of water it was impossible to save the mill although a bucket brigade which was organized did valiant service in saving a quantity of lumber nearby.

The mill was located on route 28 just above the junction of the Ashokan boulevard and had been operating for the past couple of years. It was the mill formerly operated by E. C. Davis at West Shokan and which when purchased by Mr. Duloff was moved to Boiceville. The building housing the machinery together with the saw carriage and equipment was destroyed.

Alterations Planned In School Buildings

taken care of in one room at the Municipal Auditorium the board experienced difficulty in getting the necessary equipment and to avoid this same trouble the board took up the matter earlier.

At present indications are that two rooms will be required in the municipal auditorium this January at the opening of the second semester since the various district superintendents from the country districts report an increased number of students to be graduated at mid-term. Last year but one room was used and at present indications are that two rooms will be required this year.

20 Desks Used

Twenty of the desks purchased last winter for use in the non-resident school in the auditorium are now in use in the high school to care for the big registration there. These desks will be replaced in the overflow rooms.

The matter of procedure, in the event the Common Council makes a report on its investigation of school conditions at the council meeting Tuesday evening, also came up for an informal discussion. Some time ago the Board of Education referred the matter of the crowded condition at grade and high schools to the Common Council for investigation. A committee composed of Aldermen Murphy, Peyer and Garon and Alderman-at-large John Schwenk was named and the committee has made an investigation of conditions and it is possible a report will be made to the council Tuesday evening. In that event the Board of Education will receive a copy of the report and recommendations and the Building Committee desired to know what action it should take or whether the report should be held for the first meeting of the full board. It was determined that the Building Committee should study any report made by the Common Council and then report to the full board at its first meeting and at that time makes any recommendation to the board which might be advisable. This action was taken in order not to delay the matter. The board will meet December 18.

Whether a report will be made by the committee to the Common Council Tuesday evening is not known definitely but such a report is expected because of the fact that the committee from the Common Council completed its inspections some time ago and have been giving the matter attention since.
